

Less Spreading Of Work Than In 1929, Labor Official Finds

'May be Thousand and
One Reasons for
It,' He Says
INQUIRY IS BEGUN
No Attempt to be Made
To Fix 'Blame'
For Recession

Washington—(AP)—A labor department official testified today that some firms which sought to combat unemployment by spreading work in 1929 "are not attempting to spread the work today."

Appearing as the first witness before a special senate unemployment committee, Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, said he did not know "whether or not this change was deliberate."

"Perhaps these companies felt they over-did it (spreading work) in 1929," Lubin continued, "There may be a thousand and one reasons for it."

The specialized statistical expert estimated 7,000,000 to 7,500,000 persons are currently unemployed.

He did not name any firms specifically, but emphasized they not all had abandoned work-spreading practices in 1929.

Sharp Price Drops
Senator Murray (D-Mont.) asked whether Lubin thought there was any justification for a "sudden shutting down" in some industries recently.

Lubin replied a sharp drop in prices may have caused some curtailment.

Copper and some other prices fell, he said, after President Roosevelt indicated last spring that some costs were "unconscionably high."

Lubin testified after Chairman Byrnes (D-S. C.) had opened the hearing with a statement that the group did not intend to show that either labor or capital deliberately brought about the present recession in business.

Lubin said that the agricultural implement industry, aircraft construction, electrical machinery, explosives, chemicals and other kindred industries "had not felt the slump in a marked way."

'Terrific' Declines
The drop in men's clothing and textile industries, however, has been "terrific," he said.

Most industries allied with the building trade, he continued, had never really recovered from the 1929 depression.

In opening the session Byrnes said "it is our desire to secure the cooperation of employers, employees and officials of government to determine what legislation, if any, can be enacted by congress to encourage individuals to provide more jobs."

For those who cannot be thus re-employed, the committee hopes to work out the most effective possible relief program.

Byrnes declared there would be no effort "to show that either labor or capital deliberately brought about the present recession in business."

Lubin testified the drop in employment between October and mid-December was sharper than that following the 1929 crash.

Between 1,475,000 and 1,550,000 persons, he estimated, lost their jobs in November and the first

Two Killed, Three Hurt
In Crossing Collision

Columbus, Wis.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and three others seriously injured yesterday when their car collided with the Milwaukee road's Hiawatha at a crossing here.

The dead were identified as Otto Buth, 49, superintendent of schools at Mayville, Wis., and Kaetchen M. Wegner, 23, a woman senior student at the University of Wisconsin.

The injured were Virginia Buth, 19, daughter of the superintendent; George Rediske, 22, of Mayville, and Jean Harmony, 17, of Virgoque. They are University of Wisconsin students and were returning to school after the holidays.

Police said witnesses told them the Buth car was traveling south on Highway 151 when it skidded into the rear drive wheels of the locomotive. Wreckage of the car and bodies of the passengers were strewn along the right of way for 200 feet.

To Clear Way for

U. S. to Seek Dissolution
Of Many Temporary
Injunctions

Washington—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings said today that the government, in view of the supreme court's decision in the Alabama and Duke power cases, would seek immediate dissolution of nearly a half hundred temporary injunctions now blocking public power projects in 23 states.

Ending a three-year legal contest, the high tribunal upheld unanimously yesterday the validity of government grants and loans to municipally-owned power plants.

"I am very much gratified," Attorney General Cummings said in a formal statement today, "at the decisions rendered by the supreme court in the Alabama and Duke power cases. There are 61 cases pending throughout the country which will be controlled by the decision."

"The government will immediately take steps to secure the dissolution of all temporary injunctions, in this class of litigation, which have so far blocked public power projects in 23 states."

Twelve cases were filed outside the District of Columbia, one in Indiana, a power project at Menominee, Mich.

Total construction cost of the 61 projects affected by the court's decision is estimated at $146,917,808, for which the public works administration already had allotted $61,225,544 in loans and $38,412,408 in grants.

Ousted Premier
Fights in Egypt

Seeks to Restore His Nationalist Party to Power

Cairo, Egypt—(AP)—Defiant and ousted Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha, who struck matches to read a speech against King Farouk's government in a darkened parliament, fought today to restore to power his nationalist party, the Wafd.

The city was tense after a riotous chamber of deputies session broke up in disorder, and troops and police were on the alert.

The government of Mohamed Mahmoud, named premier after Nahas was forced out, continued—but under a voted lack of confidence from both chamber and senate.

Nahas blocked successfully efforts of the boy king to suspend a riotous chamber of deputies for one month, until new elections, when rebellious deputies ended down efforts to read the suspension order last night.

Although the order was not read, the cabinet was expected to govern without parliament for a month. Then, following constitutional practice the premier must again face parliament or dissolve the chamber and hold elections before April 2.

Nahas' nationalist, Wafdists demanded that Mahmoud resign, and today pressed disciplinary action against parliamentarians who wavered on that stand.

Author Sued for $70,000
After Fatal Auto Crash

Phoenix, Ariz.—(AP)—Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, Los Angeles author recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident New Year's eve, was named defendant yesterday in damage suits asking $70,000 because of the deaths of two Arizona women and injuries to two other persons in the collision.

Brennan, who suffered a brain concussion, fractured jaw and fractured shoulder, was in a "satisfactory" condition today, physicians said. Mrs. Brennan suffered a brain concussion.

Detroit—(AP)—Captain Donald S. Leonard of the state police announced this afternoon that Gertrude Bennett, missing 18-year-old daughter of Harry Bennett, Ford Motor company personnel director, and Russell Hughes were married at 6 o'clock p. m. in Auburn, Ind.

Captain Leonard said he learned of the marriage from County Clerk Carl Walters at Auburn. He said, however, the couple had not been found.

The marriage, Captain Leonard said, was performed by Justice of the Peace Miles Baxter at Auburn. Miss Bennett gave her birth date as May 2, 1918.

Justice Baxter at Auburn said he performed the ceremony at his office. The justice said he was called by the county clerk who merely told him a young couple wished to be married. Justice Baxter said he was unaware of the identity of the couple. They told him, he said, they were college students from Ypsilanti, Mich., and lived in Detroit.

Ypsilanti, Mich.—(AP)—The turreted, castle-like home of Harry E. Bennett, Ford Motor company executive, seethed with activity today as an intense search was directed for his missing daughter, 17-year-old Gertrude Bennett.

State Police Captain Don Leonard said every possibility from abduction to elopement was under consideration. The federal bureau of investigation was assisting Leonard.

Miss Bennett, a student at Michigan Normal college here, has been missing since Monday afternoon when she was last seen by friends on the campus.

Escort Missing
Although a small army of investigators at first discounted the possibility of a romantic escapade, it was learned later that a young man who has been her escort on several occasions did not return to his home last night.

Captain Leonard said the young man was Russell Hughes, 20, Michigan Normal college student, drummer and clog dancer.

State police said the youth's mother, Mrs. Ivan Routson, told them Miss Bennett and Russell drove to her home near Dixboro about 3 p. m. yesterday. She said her son packed some clothing, including an extra suit, and drove

Hudson Motor Company
President Announces
Recovery Move

Detroit—(AP)—A. E. Barit, president of the Hudson Motor Car company, told a gathering of newsmen today that his company will recall 6,000 men to work within the "next few weeks," as part of a plan to put "men and money back to work."

At the same time he announced the Hudson company will start production this week on a new car "in the lowest price field."

The recalling of 6,000 workers, he said, will increase the factory personnel to 12,000 men and add $1,250,000 to the monthly payroll. He estimated that $11,000,000 will be expended for tools, production materials and other costs.

"It has become increasingly clear to us," Barit said, "that with business slowing down as it has been recently, we were in position to do more than announce a new automobile—we could in a way set the pace in the matter of putting men and money back to work."

"If the automobile industry was to lead the way out of the depression, it seems reasonable to do just that—to do something about leading the way out of the recession."

"While there are confidence inspiring moves of a general nature that can and should be made, there is, one specific job for industry—that is to put more men and money to work wherever possible."

Reports Women Admit Slaying Bus Driver

Newark, N. J.—(AP)—Joseph Cozzetta, acting captain of detectives of the Essex county prosecutor's office, announced today two young women had confessed the holdup-slaying of William Barhorst, a bus driver, two weeks ago. He gave their names as Mrs. Ethel Sohl, 20, and Genevieve Owens, 17, both of Newark. He said Mrs. Strauss admitted firing the fatal shot.

Barhorst, 34, father of two children, was slain Dec. 21 in dimly-lit main street, Belleville, near the end of his run. He was shot through the heart.

The loot was only $2.10.

Both women, believed to be more than 90 years old, had been injured doing house work. Money was tucked in furniture, vases and cushions.

Japs Advance Farther Into Shantung Area

Capture Cities South of Tsinan in 'Holy Land of China'

'STEADY PROGRESS'
Promise Full Protection
For Tomb of Confucius

Shanghai—(AP)—Japanese infantry columns today drove deep into the "holy land of China"—central Shantung province—and reported capture of cities more than 50 miles south of Tsinan, the already occupied provincial capital.

(Domei's, the Japanese news agency, in a dispatch to Tokio said the Japanese vanguard had captured Chufu, 70 miles south of Tsinan, where Confucius, China's great sage, was born in 550 B. C.

(The Japanese army said it would accord full protection to the tomb of Confucius at Chufu, to the great Confucius temple there and to the present duke of Kung, seventy-seventh lineal descendant of the sage, now chief ritualist of his temple.)

'Steady Progress'
A Japanese military spokesman, reporting "steady progress" for the march through Shantung, said one Japanese column had seized Tawenkwow, on the Tientsin-Pukow railway 50 miles below Tsinan.

Another force, advancing west of the railway, was said to have taken Anchiangchun, also about 50 miles south of Tsinan.

The spokesman said the Chinese set fire to Tawenkwow before fleeing from the town. Five other towns along the railway were reported captured.

Japanese bombing planes supported the infantry advance by bombing heavily many cities along the railway, including Suchow, the vital junction of the Tientsin-Pukow and Lunghai railways in north Kiangsu province.

Main Objective
Suchow is the main objective of the Japanese armies driving southward through Shantung and also another force, advancing northward above Nanking. Its capture will give the Japanese all the trunk railway linking Peiping and Tientsin with Nanking and Shanghai.

Japan's warplanes also carried destruction into central China in what a Japanese naval spokesman said was a campaign to "crush China's reorganized air force" including "large numbers of soviet planes."

Foreign reports from Hankow said American and British gunboats in the Yangtze river manned their guns, ready to defend themselves against attacks by the Japanese air squadrons. The planes, however, made no move to molest the warships.

The Japanese air raiders were said to have dropped about 70 bombs, "a majority missing their objectives." The big Hanyang arsenal appeared to be the main objective of attack.

Three Chinese were killed and 16 injured, the services said.

Chinese declared their heavy anti-aircraft fire kept the attack planes above 8,000 feet, while eight Chinese planes, "some flown by Russians," took the air to drive them off.

They said one Chinese plane was shot down.

Dinneens are Granted Hearings at Madison

Madison—(AP)—William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the public service commission, and his wife, will be given hearings Jan. 10 before the county board of review on appeals from tax assessments of about $75,000 on alleged unreported income.

The board set the hearing for 2 p. m. next Monday at a conference with Dinneen's attorney, William R. Curke.

Another vacancy on the review board, following appointment of a new group last week, was created last yesterday. Attorney Glenn D. Roberts resigned because he has clients who were creditors of the bankrupt B. E. Buckman and company, Madison investment firm.

The tax assessments against the Dinneens followed a state investigation of the Buckman company.

They filed formal answers with the county clerk today, protesting against the assessments and denying they failed to report any income or evade the tax laws.

New Pay-Hour Bill Expected To be Drafted

House Labor Committee
To Decide Course
Next Week

HEARINGS PROBABLE
Norton Would Keep Administrative Features
Of Old Bill

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) of the house labor committee, encouraged by President Roosevelt's renewed demand for legislation to end "starvation wages and intolerable hours," said today she was ready to go to work all over again on a labor standards bill.

Her committee will meet next week to decide on a course of action.

Mrs. Norton said she personally favored reopening public hearings and drafting a new wage-hour bill, rather than trying to patch up the tattered measure which a rebellious house rejected at the special session. She expressed belief, nevertheless, the administrative features of the latter bill—on which much of the controversy centered—were "splendid" and should be retained.

Some foes of the defeated bill pointed quickly to President Roosevelt's recommendations of "a floor below which industrial wages shall not fall, and a ceiling beyond which the hours of industrial labor shall not rise."

Against Old Bill?
Representative Dies (D-Texas) one of the leading opponents, interpreted this as meaning the president was opposed to the old bill because Dies said, it contained "only a stairway" on which a federal board could fix minimum wages all the way from 1 cent to 40 cents an hour.

Representative Ramspeck (D-Ga.) a supporter of the bill, said the president had made it plain he favored "flexible" legislation rather than that proposed by the American Federation of Labor, which would have imposed a flat minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and a 40-hour week on all interstate commerce.

In reference to Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that more thought should be given to the workers' total annual pay than to his hourly remuneration, both Representative Fitzgerald (D-Conn.) a member of the committee, and Mrs. Norton agreed that organized labor would not support that type of legislation if it meant reducing hourly rates.

Arraign Ford Workers
On Charges of Assault

Detroit—(AP)—Eight employees of the Ford Motor company were ordered held for trial today when arraigned in justice court on assault charges growing out of a fight at the Ford Rouge plant May 26 in which members of the United Automobile Workers were injured.

The defendants, including Everett Moore, head of the Ford service department, all stood mute and pleas of innocent were entered for them. Bond was fixed at $100 each.

The arraignments were on warrants issued at the request of prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea after previous assault warrants had been dismissed in circuit court here and the Michigan supreme court refused to hear an appeal on the dismissals.

Asks Time Extension for Washington—(AP)—Senator Duffy (D-Wis.) asked the public works administration today for a time extension for the Hammond, Wis., high school project.

Sponsors of the undertaking, for which WPA allotted $18,675 with the understanding construction would start Jan. 7, told Duffy they would be unable to comply because an additional $4,325 in excess of their original $19,000 loan from the state trust funds would not be legally available until later.

Roosevelt Expected to Increase Estimate on Fiscal Year's Deficit

Roosevelt Speech
Is 'Conciliatory,' View at Capital

Some Critics are Awaiting President's Special Message

Washington—(AP)—Several Republican leaders joined the majority of Democratic congressmen today in terming "conciliatory" President Roosevelt's pledge of cooperation with business if the latter abandons "harmful" practices.

Some of the president's foes, however, criticized his economic views and said they would await his special message on business legislation before determining their course.

Administration lieutenants described Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the opening of congress yesterday as constructive and reassuring. Senator McNary of Oregon and Representative Snell of New York, the Republican floor leaders, were among those who called it "conciliatory."

Compare Speeches
Several members of both parties contrasted its tone with recent addresses by Secretary Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

The latter officials had accused sections of big business of going "on strike" against government regulations. Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday:

"Only a small minority of (of business men and bankers) have displayed poor citizenship by engaging in practices which are dishonest or definitely harmful to society. This statement is straightforward and true. No person in any responsible place in the government of the United States today has ever taken any position contrary to it."

Varied Comment
Senator Davis (R-Pa.) commented that the president's speech must have been written "after he got the universally unfavorable reaction" to "the declarations of Ickes and Jackson. Representative Woodruff (R-Mich.) on the other hand, called the Roosevelt message "more suave and polished, but just as unbending and vicious" as the speeches by the other two men.

Observers were quick to note that a Pittsburgh address last night by Secretary Wallace was along the same theme as the president's.

"Workers and government are often critical of a few capitalists."

Escaped North Carolina
Convicts Taken Without Shot Being Fired

Sanford, N. C.—(AP)—The game was up today for Bill Payne and Wash Turner, North Carolina desperadoes, who had eluded officers for nearly eleven months.

G-men captured the escaped convicts yesterday without firing a shot.

Payne and Turner, though armed, offered no resistance when three carloads of federal bureau of investigation agents surrounded them on a main thoroughfare.

Payne and Turner were wanted on charges of bank robbery, murder, kidnapping and highway robbery.

Payne, 41, short and lean-visaged, was credited by the authorities with being the "brains" of a sensational prison break last February when he, Turner and five other convicts escaped from Caledonia prison farm, kidnapped two prison officials, seized a laundry truck, stole another car and kidnapped its driver, and released their hostages 400 miles away.

Payne and Turner were accused of slaying George Penn, a state highway patrolman, after their fingerprints were found in a car abandoned by the men Penn was pursuing when he was shot.

Vote on 3 Candidates In Alabama Contest

Birmingham, Ala.—(AP)—Alabama chose today from three candidates to succeed Justice Hugo L. Black in the United States senate, in the windup of a campaign in which debate over the wages and hours bill played a prominent part.

The candidates are former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, attempting a political comeback at 68; J. Lester Hill, for 15 years a representative in congress, and Charles W. Williams, a political newcomer who terms himself a "dirty farmer."

Black introduced the wages and hours bill before resigning to accept appointment to the supreme court. Heflin and Williams opposed the bill in their campaigns; Hill spoke in its favor.

Mrs. Dixie Graves, wife of Governor Bibb Graves, now serving in the senate on an interim appointment, will resign in favor of the successful candidate in today's primary.

Ousted CIO Men
Seeking New Jobs
At Ft. Atkinson

State Federation Officials
Deplore Attitude Of Union

Ft. Atkinson—(AP)—Fifteen former employees of the Creamery Package Manufacturing company sought new employment today.

The men, former members of a CIO union at the plant, was dismissed yesterday after being rejected from membership in the A.F. of L. union which now has sole bargaining rights and a closed shop agreement with the package manufacturing concern.

Some of the discharged employees had worked at the same jobs for 20 years.

Meanwhile nearly 100 other company employees formerly affiliated with the CIO union waited for the A.F. of L. to pass on their applications for membership in the federation union.

Since Nov. 27, when the state labor board took cognizance of a 138-133 A.F. of L. dominance over the CIO in a bargaining rights election at the package company, the federation has been authorized to handle all union matters. Previous to that time the CIO had been in control by temporary arrangement set up by the labor board after a hearing last summer.

Regret Action
State officials of the American Federation of Labor expressed regret today over the attitude of the federation local at Ft. Atkinson.

J. J. Handley, secretary of the state A. F. of L. at Madison, said that grudges probably existed at Ft. Atkinson following the long labor fight there.

"I understand that final determination of the matter will be made at another meeting Thursday night," Handley said. "If the local men have exceeded their authority, the state organization can step in and take a hand."

F. J. Michel, Racine, regional director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), who went to Ft. Atkinson to investigate developments, said at Racine today:

"I have always said that the company here and the A.F. of L. union have been practically one and the same. If the A.F. of L. union is going with the company, it's a darn poor union."

Green Bay—(AP)—Edward A. Konsavage, former Manitowish and Sheboygan county probation officer, pleaded innocent to an information in municipal court today charging operation of the automobile of Huxo Conte, of Milwaukee, without the owner's consent.

Konsavage, unable to furnish bond, was returned to jail Attorney Francis Erward, asked an adjournment until Jan. 12 to complete preparation of the defense. A trial date probably will be set at that time.

Konsavage also faces 11 charges of larceny as bailie, and one of forgery, in municipal court at Manitowish. These charges were filed by E. F. Murphy, superintendent of probation and parole.

Asks for Legislative Probe of Buckman Case

Milwaukee—(AP)—State Senator Harold W. Schoenecker (Dem.) in a letter today to Governor LaFollette suggested the appointment of a legislative committee to investigate the B. E. Buckman and company case and the public service commission.

Schoenecker proposed remedial legislation "to prevent a recurrence of similar evil practices."

"If the public service commission or any of its employees has been remiss in its duties," the letter said, "then the legislature and the people are entitled to know about it."

Washington—(AP)—Amid predictions that President Roosevelt would revise his deficit estimate for this fiscal year upward to $1,250,000,000, the treasury announced today that the deficit for the first half of the year reached $645,068,770.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to send to congress tomorrow his budget for the fiscal year 1939, which begins next July 1. Informed officials forecast the budget would propose a $1,000,000,000 deficit.

To this they added another prediction—that Mr. Roosevelt would change his estimate of this year's budget deficit from $895,245,000 to $1,250,

Guerrilla War Is Being Fought in Teruel District

Snow and Sleet Prevents Mass Movements and Aerial Attacks

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border —A beleaguered insurgent and Spanish government troops fought today at rifle range through the ice-crusted streets of Teruel, in guerrilla warfare that may determine the tide of the civil conflict.

Snow checked mass offensives by the 200,000 troops of the two armies on the front encircling Teruel, and sleet grounded airplanes and bogged motorized units in the mountainous terrain.

But within the city itself, 160 miles to the east of Madrid, there was the crackle of rifle fire and fighting at close range.

Both sides claimed control of the provincial capital. It appeared that the insurgents held the advantage, but an earlier announcement of complete domination of the Teruel front was not borne out.

One band of insurgents lashed at the Madrid-Barcelona enemy from a church and the shambles of an adjacent seminary, dynamited last week by government troops. A Barcelona government communiqué said the church was captured.

Government troops consolidated positions in a municipal building in a sally against insurgents within the Hotel Aragon, another haven for the Teruel garrison since a Madrid-Valencia army captured the city in a surprise offensive Dec. 21.

On the snow-swept front outside the city, first aid corps struggled to bring wounded of the past day's fighting to shelter. Hundreds of frozen bodies were said to have been left on the icy battlefields.

Hindered by the drifting snow, the government admitted a slight loss in positions outside Teruel but did not specify where. Government communiqués said several insurgent machine gun nests were taken in a sudden attack at Muela.

Alleged Bribery Attempt Leads to Wisconsin Probe

Madison —Disclosure that a Milwaukee attorney had attempted to bribe the chief enforcement officer of the state beverage ring resulted today in an investigation that may bring criminal proceedings.

The bribe offer, of $1,000, was said to have been made several months ago following a raid by state agents on a huge still near Montello in which five persons were arrested.

State Treasurer Sol Levitan admitted that Sam Woldenberg, chief of the enforcement division, had informed him of the incident but refused further comment until Woldenberg, who was out in the field, returns to Madison.

"When Mr. Woldenberg returns a complete report will be obtained and referred to proper authorities for their necessary action," the treasurer said.

The Madison Capital Times published a story of the bribe offer in which it said other attempts have been made by Progressive leaders, one of them a prominent party man, to reach the beverage tax division through use of money and political connections.

The Capital Times said one well known Progressive leader urged the division to refrain from interfering with Milwaukee liquor rectifiers who were selling direct to individuals in violation of law, and that a bootleg king operating in Wisconsin had called at the department in search of protection.

La Follette Interested

It also reported a county judge had offered Woldenberg $100 to keep a certain employee on the payroll.

Although no formal statement was forthcoming from Governor La Follette the executive office said he would be interested in any evidence of laxity or political interference in the department.

The Capital Times charged that a powerful bootleg ring, dominated by a man in a central Wisconsin city and having state-wide ramifications, was the owner of stills recently raided by state agents at Montello and Medford.

Following the Montello raid, Woldenberg was reported to have been invited to the office of an attorney while he was in Milwaukee on business and told "there would be $1,000 in it for him" if he would permit federal agents to handle the case.

The Capital Times said the law enforcement officer who was in the still were getting protection from federal agents.

Relatives Lose Fight Over Fund in Estate

Memominee, Mich. —An opinion handed down yesterday by Circuit Judge Frank A. Bell dismissed the suit of 13 relatives of the late Marshall B. Lloyd, opposing the plan to use the fund for creation of a medical clinic in Memominee. The fund was a part of the Lloyd estate not disposed of by the will, relatives claimed.

The court, holding the fund valid, approved plans for spending $120,000 for building and equipping the Lloyd Memorial Clinic. The fund consists of $14,000 in cash and 13,500 shares of stock of the Heywood Wakefield company, having par value of $25.

Veteran Politicians Find Number of Hidden Motives In Anti-Monopoly Campaign

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY

(AP) Feature Service Writer

Washington — The official explanation for the New Deal's anti-monopoly campaign in the face of the business recession is simple: High prices—fixed high by monopoly—forced consumers to buy less. Result: the recession. Thus an attack on monopoly at this time is logical.

But veteran politicians, always squinting between lines for hidden motives, can figure out other reasons why it would be expedient now to campaign against monopoly. Here are some of the possibilities they will outline, privately—and you can take them or leave them.

1. Monopoly is one sure-fire issue any political party can raise to rally its warring factions.

(Nearly every Republican and Democratic platform in the last half century has deplored the evils of monopoly and trusts. That's because big business is a convenient political whipping boy among nearly all classes of voters, especially farmers, workers, and conservative southern Democrats.)

2. If the Democratic party does not act immediately to prevent price fixing by big business, the Republicans may grab the issue as their own.

(Former President Herbert Hoover recently told the Republican party to write "regulation of business" into a declaration of party principles. Said he: "We must compel competition in a large area of business. . . . It is the motive power of progress. . . .")

3. A few monopoly scamps to dangle before the eyes of the voters

Former Workers Occupy Famous Hotel and Casino

Demand Alleged Overdue Wages and 'Right to Work' at Agua Caliente

Agua Caliente, Mexico. —The luxurious Agua Caliente hotel and Casino, one-time playground of the film folk, was held today by a grimly-determined army of former employees who demanded "the right to work."

The $10,000,000 resort has had a hectic existence since Mexico's anti-gambling laws first turned it into a ghost playground, but its seizure by the workers was the most bizarre twist of all.

Accompanied by their families, 400 workers took over the hotel yesterday. They locked the gates behind them, barring police and officials of the Agua Caliente company.

Confiscated Hotel

The hotel was confiscated by the Mexican government last September. Baron Long, president of the Agua Caliente company, has said that 85 per cent of the stock in the $10,000,000 property was owned by United States citizens.

The workmen invaded the once-luxurious establishment on two grounds:

First, they demanded three months wages they declared are due.

Second, they objected to seizure of the property by the government "for school purposes."

Strange Sight

Occupancy of the palatial resort once frequented by wealthy sportsmen and Hollywood notables, by Mexican workers and their wives and children was a strange sight.

The seizure was orderly and before nightfall yesterday the former employees and their families left the hotel and entrenched themselves in cottages. The protesters, members of a union affiliated with the C. R. M., Mexican labor organization, declared they would keep possession until the government gave them means of earning a living.

The red flag of the C. R. M. flew over Agua Caliente.

The Agua Caliente race track will continue to operate as usual. It opened last Sunday for a one-day-a-week meeting.

Dim Lights for Safety

But how to get the facts before the public? The answer might be another demand by Mr. Roosevelt for a thoroughgoing investigation of monopolies by Congress, a demand he voiced in a 1937 message to the lawmakers.

Greatest asset to such an investigation would be an able prosecutor, like pitiless Ferdinand Pecora, who gave Wall Street the blackest eye it ever got from the government since some years ago when he investigated the stock market for a senate investigating committee.

The procedure should be politically safe. If the investigation should fail to disclose the collusion that Jackson thinks there is among powerful industrialists, no harm would be done. If regulation should be indicated as a remedy, the Democrats would have an issue that is light bring all their factions together again into one big happy family.

Youths Charged With Murder of Elderly Man

Rockford, Ill. — (AP) — Assistant State's Attorney Max A. Weston issued warrants today charging Gordon Malm, 19, and Delore Wayne Montgomery, 16, with the slaying of Malm's 82-year-old grandfather last week.

The boys were returned here last night from Corydon, Ia., where they were seized Sunday in an automobile which, police said, was stolen.

Weston said the youths admitted beating Martin Pearson, well-to-do recluse, in his home, but insisted they did not know he had died. Malm, unaware that he had been made sole heir to Pearson's $10,000 estate, and his companion bound and gagged the aged man, Weston said, and then shoved him under a bed. They found about $30 in Pearson's coat, and fled.

Safety Council May Hold General Meeting

A county-wide meeting of the Outagamie County Street and Highway Safety council may be held during one of the remaining winter months, according to Frank R. Appleton, chairman. Members of the council executive committee will meet soon to discuss the meeting.

The committee also will study means for raising more funds to pay for a motion picture machine to show safety pictures in county schools. A fund containing more than $100 already has been established for the purpose.

In Medina Wednesday night, Sturgeon Bay Thursday and Manitowish Friday, Dr. John W. Wilson, pastor-at-large for Congregational churches in Wisconsin, supplied at Kewaunee Sunday morning.

"God" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following is a passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The scriptures imply that God is all-in-all. God is individual, incorporeal. He is divine principle, love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existent. He is all-inclusive and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else. He fills all space and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipotence and individuality except as infinite spirit or mind."

Report Expedition Marooned on Rock In British Guiana

Georgetown, British Guiana. —The Waldeck expedition searching for Paul Redfern, American aviator missing 10 years, was marooned today on a rock in the upper Cuyuni river, about 150 miles from here.

The expedition reported its porters had deserted and its food supplies were running low.

Theodore J. Waldeck, explorer, led his party into the jungles from Bartica, 50 miles south of here, Dec. 13 aboard three specially constructed boats.

Aid, rushed by boat, may not reach the marooned expedition—three men and a woman—for a week.

The party is deep in the British Guiana jungles, surrounded by rapids of the Cuyuni river, which teems with snakes and alligators.

Word of its plight reached here today when native porters and boatmen returned to Bartica. They told of quarreling and deserting after food began running low and Waldeck started rationing the supplies.

With Waldeck are his wife, the former Jo Besse McElveen of Kingston, S. C.; William Astor Chanler of New York, and Dr. Frederick J. Fox of Boston.

Redfern was declared legally dead yesterday in Detroit on a petition by Mrs. Gertrude S. Redfern, his wife.

Building Activity In Abrupt Decline As Old Year Ends

December Construction Costs are 500 Per Cent Below 1936 Figure

Although estimated expenditures for building this year exceeded all previous years, construction in December showed a 500 per cent decrease from December 1936. A total of $8,995 in estimated building was reported last month as compared with $45,930 in December a year ago, according to records in the inspector's office.

Last month the inspector authorized construction of two new homes estimated to cost $8,200, which, when compared to the total in December, 1936, shows a drop of about $29,000.

Construction was started on seven residences valued at $32,050 in December a year ago.

The decline in home building is much more marked when the November and December reports are compared. During November 14 homes estimated to cost $62,000 were started. The current business recession combined with the seasonal drop is believed responsible.

During the month two permits were issued for residence remodeling estimated at $270 compared to remodeling estimated at $850 in November. One permit for a new garage was given and two mercantile permits were issued.

G. O. P. and Democratic Groups Have Deficits

Washington. —Both Republican and Democratic national committees lived beyond their incomes last year, reports to the clerk of the house disclosed today.

The Democrats said they received $1,294,748.47 during the year—the largest single source being the annual "Victory dinners"—and spent $1,461,272.75.

The Republican committee reported receipts of $628,046 and disbursements of $632,185.

Deducting $8,495.59 cash on hand from their unpaid debts, the Democrats figured their red ink balance at $211,295.93. The Republicans did not disclose similar computation.

Ethel Merman Different Sort of '1-Picture Star'

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Ethel Merman is a different sort of a "one-picture star." The species generally is pitted in Hollywood, but not Ethel. The blues-shouting brunette from Broadway has been a "one-picture star" in five pictures.

"Each time I came out to Hollywood before — on one picture, deals — I already had a commitment to return to New York for a play as soon as the film was finished," she says. "By the time I would sign for another picture, the last one was long off the screen and forgotten. Each time I had to start my movie career again as a newcomer."

Students to Hear New Type Concert

Operatic Team to Present Revue of Songs at High School

"Radio Operatic Revue," the seventh in a series of lyric programs will be presented by Wilfred Louis Cushing, Canadian tenor, and Eileen Hutton, American soprano, before the student body at Appleton High school Tuesday morning, Jan. 11.

The Cushing-Hutton type of entertainment is a new departure in the concert field. The artists present a program of light and grand opera accompanied by electrically transcribed organ and orchestral backgrounds.

When the curtain is drawn, the audience sees the artists before a loud speaker at a table. The accompaniment emanates from the speaker and the singers present their solos, duets and dialogues coordinated with the unseen music.

The pair will offer excerpts from popular operettas including the "Desert Song," by Gilbert Spross. Selections from Noel Coward's "Bittersweet," Romberg's "Blossom Time," and Friml's "Vagabond King" also will be offered.

League Makes Survey On Tax Division Rule

A survey is being made by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities to get opinions of mayors and other city officials on the need of separate columns affixed to tax bills on division of taxes. The state legislature in 1937 ruled that each tax bill must carry separate calculations dividing the state, county, city and school taxes for each taxpayer. The rule causes much extra work for employees of the treasurer's office. In other years the division was shown by stamping each tax bill with a set stamp showing percentages.

California Court Rates Decision Is Ordered Reversed

Case Returned to Determine Whether Rates Are Confiscatory

Washington—(P)—The supreme court yesterday reversed a California district court decree enjoining a rate-making order of the state railroad commission and returned to the Southern Indiana Federal District court for further consideration a case involving Indianapolis water rates fixed by the state public service commission.

The tribunal sent the California case back to the lower court to determine whether the rates were confiscatory. In this case the government had asked the justices to reverse previous decisions and held that utilities should be valued for rate-making purposes on the basis of "prudent investment" without considering reproduction costs.

In returning the case the court delayed indefinitely a final determination on the "prudent investment" valuation theory advocated by President Roosevelt recently.

Black Dissents In the majority opinion returning the Indianapolis water rate case to a federal district court, Chief Justice Hughes said the district court would be able to determine whether a rate schedule fixed by the state public service commission for the Indianapolis Water company should be revised in the light of recent business conditions.

The district court held in November, 1935, that the value of the company's property was $21,929,821 as of April 1, 1933. The seventh circuit court of appeals later decided the valuation for rate-making purposes should be $22,368,258, because there had been a "constant and definite trend upward in commodity prices" since that date.

Justice Black, dissenting, said he believed the litigation should be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Black said he believed the state of Indiana had the right to regulate the price of water in Indianapolis "free from interference by federal courts."

Missing Daughter of Ford Official, Feared Kidnaped, Reported Wed in Indiana away. She said she attached no significance to the circumstance because he usually took extra clothing when he filled an orchestra engagement.

Bennett was disinclined to accept the elopement theory. Bennett said that "if something hadn't happened to Trudie, she would let us know where she was."

He added that "if she wanted to get married, it she knows I couldn't stop her; my daughters run me."

Billie Bennett, 19-year-old sister of the missing girl, communicated with her mother, Bennett's first wife, who lives in Detroit. The mother said she had received no word from her vanished daughter.

Captain Leonard said that if Miss Bennett was with Hughes he had no fears for her safety.

The chief cause for alarm in connection with the case was due to the prominence of the girl's father, chief of the far-flung Ford Motor company's personnel and head of his private police force.

Bennett has been threatened with death frequently and attempts on his life have been made in other years. Violence to members of his family has been threatened by cranks at various times, it was reported.

Nothing had happened recently, however, to cause any special precautions at the Huron river home of the Bennetts near here.

But today its spacious grounds were trampled by newsmen, photographers, curious spectators, state policemen, federal bureau of investigation men and numerous agents of Bennett's own police force.

The last word from the missing girl was apparently contained in a note which she sent to her older sister, Billie, Monday afternoon. The note said:

"Billie: 'I called Esther (step-mother of the girls) and I have a four-six, also a W. A. A. dinner at 6:30-8:00. Go on home and I'll call you at Max's to come down after me.'"

The note was interpreted to mean she had class from 4 to 6 p. m. and a dinner engagement at the Women's Athletic association quarters on the campus. "Max" was said to be Miss Maxine Wilbur, a school friend at whose home the girls visited frequently.

Miss Billie Bennett received the note from her sister through a clerk employed at the college. It was said to have been definitely Trudie's handwriting.

The missing girl is a freshman at the college.

White House Pleased With Comment After Message

Washington—(P)—White House officials said today reaction to President Roosevelt's message to congress asking the cooperation of business in correcting economic evils had been "more spontaneous and more favorable" than on any of his previous messages.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary, said telegrams and telephone calls began when the president returned to the White House and continued through the night. He added there was just one telegram that appeared unfavorable.

Early described as a "healthy sign" information in many of the messages telling how groups gathered to listen to the address in barber shops, hotel lobbies, and small business houses.

Other officials close to the White House said the president was contemplating no further messages to congress except that on the budget, a second urging strengthening of the anti-trust laws, and possibly a

Require Students To Pay Fee if They Flunk in a Course

Norman, Okla.—(P)—That old "flunking fee" scare turned up at the University of Oklahoma again today—three weeks before semester exams—and this time it's about to become a reality.

The "flunking fee," designed by the board of regents two years ago, required students to pay $3 per semester hour failed.

Student leaders branded it unfair; carried their fight to the state legislature. Nothing was done about it, and everyone forgot about the fee—except the regents.

Unsuspecting students were jolted awake this morning when they learned the regents voted yesterday to put the fee into effect.

Said coed Erlene Lasley: "We have to pay to pass courses. Why should we pay to flunk them?"

University officials estimate flunking would cost students $12,000 a semester.

Commission Approves Changes in Bus Routes

Madison—(P)—The public service commission today approved changes in bus routes operated in southwestern Wisconsin by Gordon Aspenon of Prairie du Chien and the Wisconsin Power and Light company.

Aspenon will abandon his bus route on Highways 60 and 61 from Bridgeport to Fennimore, on Highway 24 between Lancaster and Platteville, and on 118 between Platteville and Dickeyville.

Aspenon will establish service on Highway 35 from Bridgeport to Lancaster, on 61 and 129 between Lancaster, Dickeyville, and Potosi, and on 18 between Fennimore and Dodgeville.

The Wisconsin Power and Light company will abandon service on Highway 18 from Dodgeville to Fennimore, on 61 from Fennimore to Lancaster and on 81 from Lancaster to Platteville. It will establish service on Highway 118 from Mineral Point to Dickeyville to connect with an existing route on 61 from Dickeyville to the Iowa line.

Post Maps Plans for Improving Clubhouse

Plans for the improvement of the clubhouse were developed at a meeting of the Onay Johnston Post of the American Legion last night. The clubhouse, located at the corner of Superior and Hancock streets and formerly a church, is being painted and the downstair ceiling will be improved. A new roof already has been applied.

The executive committee of the post has approved disposing of the parsonage which was purchased with the church.

Following committee reports on membership and other matters, a sound motion picture was shown at last night's meeting by George Limpert, Jr. The playing of cards concluded the evening.

FIRST COMES THE DRILL MASTER

The way the Administration defended itself from criticism in the recent recession should provoke the highest sort of applause for its cleverness, although, whether by design or otherwise, it merely used methods that have long been known to every army in the world.

Recruits are quite often put under severe drill sergeants, hard-boiled, owl-visaged men who have forgotten how to smile, leer at their charges, snarl out their commands, and make the recruits wish they were home or any place out of the army. About the time this notion gains ascendancy sergeants are changed and the recruit finds someone with a smile, a howdy and a bit of human touch. He is ready to go through Salt Creek for the new boss. But the one who really made him contented with life was the one in authority who has moved on.

This plan, whether in the army or in politics, cannot be called childish. Anything so successful has earned at least the compliment of maturity.

When criticism of the administration for the lengthening unemployment queues became unbearable at Washington Drill Master Jackson and his co-worker, Drill Master Ickes, went to work on the body politic, damned the thinning line of rich, cursed out the monopolies, declared a sit-down strike by business leaders and thus prepared the scene for His Excellency, the President.

And Mr. Roosevelt, though not departing from the alleged principles which he declared had guided him, stated most emphatically that bankers and business men were almost invariably good people and that no one speaking for the Administration meant to say aught else, adding with significant stress, "This is straightforward and true."

What a marvelous variety of results can be obtained through various shades of meaning presented by different words and the tone or manner and stress with which they are spoken.

Yet the President, although speaking the truth his satellites disguised, has nevertheless, preserved a mangy and odoriferous goat without which an administration would be as lost as a varsity club without a mascot. It only needs one goat, and one "malfeactor of great wealth" will do.

The business men of the nation who have been perspiring under the loads shifted to their backs, and particularly the impractical laws passed to annoy them, will conclude that the President is not such a bad fellow after all and therefore dig in their toes a little deeper in the effort to get the country out of the ditch into which its rulers have run it.

A MOTHER'S CHOICE

Mothers are a noble group and merit a great deal more than a toast on Mother's Day.

There was that widowed mother down in Missouri recently whose son, a shiftless reformed-do-well, confessed to her that he had participated in a kidnapping that failed.

Between love and duty is identical with being between two loves, for this mother loved her country and respected its laws and she loved her wayward son who hadn't respected anything.

Fortune hadn't been kind to her. Her home was barren of comforts as her life had been robbed of ease and joy, but her heart was rich in high purposes and her mind was cleared of the tangles that confuse and prevent honest thought.

So this woman, Mrs. Wright, told her son that she must notify the sheriff, nor was she stayed in her purpose by her boy's threat that if the sheriff came he would find a corpse.

She was a spartan mother and deserved more generously of fate than a criminal suicide for a son. But it takes spartan mothers to make a great country as it takes a quiet determination to do the right, however much it hurts, to make true nobility in people.

PANAY PICTURES

Everyone who witnessed the pictures of the destruction of the Panay probably felt a little flame of rage coming into being within him.

That is one of the unexpected twists to mankind as it watches a great and consuming conflict.

It was not only that a manful American crew had been, foully and wantonly attacked. There was other highly inflammatory sights. There were the dead lying everywhere and the wounded limping to a place of rest. And, outshining all the rest as a symbol of war, was a Chinese mother hysterically clutching the hand of her dead husband as the innocent hands of her living children tugged at her skirts for help and attention. Her face portrayed her agony, her clothes proclaimed her poverty, but there was something about the intensity of her loyal countenance that, despite disheveled hair, brought her some of the divine aura that is only created through humble demands, honest toil, patient suffering and tender sacrifice.

There is no serum to prevent the infection of rage from a constant repetition of such scenes. The horrors of war become insignificant as men strain to participate, convinced that the destruction of the invader is the answer to the crime.

The only antidote for that infection is to be constantly forewarned of its likelihood.

THE CHINESE DEFENSE

On virtually all sides the boasted army of China has crumbled or been scattered by the Japs.

The only sort of resistance in such a situation is guerilla warfare which, from the standpoint of battles, military successes or final victories, approaches non-resistance.

Czar Alexander, with the aid of wintry blasts, defeated the French invasion of Russia through this policy 125 years ago and finally routed, and almost destroyed, an army that was the pride of Napoleon but six months earlier.

But the policy suggested for China can be only carried through with great difficulty. It demands iron leadership, iron discipline, and a burning patriotism.

If the Chinese people, for the sake of peace, are willing in large numbers to bend to Nippon's yoke or if Chinese leaders accept bribes of money or power or are motivated by petty envy and the pitiful chance for some position of authority, then such a defense cannot succeed and efforts in that line must be wasted.

A returning American newspaper correspondent thus describes the inception of this style of defense:

"I saw the development of the Chinese 'scorched earth' policy.

"It is designed to destroy everything destructible in the path of the enemy's advance so that he cannot live off the countryside. I saw grain crops leveled, farm houses burned, buildings dynamited, bridges destroyed and even footpaths gashed with great holes so that they could not be walked upon.

"I saw commerce stopped on the mighty Yangtze river—the transport route over which food supplies moved for 100,000,000 people. I saw children starve when these food supplies were cut off.

"I went into North China. "The dikes along the rivers, built by the toil of generations of men, were broken and the fields turned into muddy lakes dotted with mounds of rotting grain.

"I heard a description of war from broken Chinese soldiers who were invalidated from the front. They whispered of men who were chained to their machine guns so that they could not cease firing when they were assigned to cover a retreat. They told of officers who enforced obedience with automatic pistols."

It is doubtful whether the Chinese people have enough of the inflexible inner man within them to submit to the torture, perhaps of years, of this program in order to gain their freedom.

THE OLD YEAR

The year 1937 now belongs to "yesterday's 7000 years." Or is it 20 billion?

It is as dead as King Tut and Mohammed but its memory is a bit fresher, although some may say the aroma is not altogether fresh.

It started pleasantly enough. But it began creaking at the beginning of the second quarter and at the end of the third quarter it had bogged down rather sadly.

It was just another year, a period of time during which the human race is gestating through trial and error onto a higher plane and into a better sphere.

It was not a happy year for democracy. Tyrants everywhere seemed to make tighter their security and scoffed at democratic rule to the cheers of the flop-eared and stuttering-lipped who applauded largely to save their hides or as proof of the vacancy back of their foreheads.

But 1937 from another standpoint was loaded with exquisite values. It signified to democracy many wise ideas concerning men who look upon themselves as leaders and whose words the people too often have learned to know as empty.

And it proved beyond a doubt—and constant proof is always necessary—that liberty, safety, security and life itself can only be maintained by a correct answering of questions that are bound to arise to a people who insist upon governing themselves.

Opinions Of Others

SUCH "HORRIBLE AMERICANISMS"

It seems that a British judge was so shocked the other day by a lawyer's use of one of those "horrible Americanisms" that his wig almost fell off. The document read in court remarked that an agreement had been "reached," whereas proper usage among our English cousins, self-constituted guardians of our common tongue, dictates employment of "arrive at" or "conclude" in this connection.

"We do not want these horrible things to get into our language," was the judicial dictum. That may go for the British courts. But there is reason to believe that if America were so foolish as to fall for the demand that she "bear the brunt" of coercive measures against Japan—to use the words of Sir Arthur Willer—British statesmen would not quibble over whether the agreement was reached, arrived at or concluded. An agreement to this effect might be couched in the most horrible Americanisms and yet be music to their ears—Philadelphia Inquirer.

NEW YEAR'S reflections . . . 1938 got off to a rather delayed start, what with not having to show up at work until January 3 . . . the amateur drinkers usually offer the greatest problem on New Year's eve . . . they seem to save up all year for this one occasion and let 'er go all at once . . . the true quaffers hesitate to venture forth in public on a night like that, they consider it exhibitionistic . . . I heard about one place where people were refusing drinks on the house at 2:15 a. m. . . they just couldn't hold any more . . . which may somewhat bear out the point just made . . . the true quaffer can gauge his quota up to the moment of climbing into his pajamas . . . the other kind are put into their pajamas or just tossed into bed without the preliminaries . . . radio orchestras from the west coast were sending raucous at around 2 a. m. (yes, I was home by then) . . . wonder what an orchestra player thinks about along about midnight at a New Year's eve party? . . . particularly those who had to compete with miniature bombs exploded at one place . . . or who may have heard about the gent in tuxedo who visited a non-tux party late in the course of festivities, was mistaken for an orchestra player and rewarded with a drink for his fine work with the saxophone . . . the drink buyer couldn't be convinced otherwise . . . wonder why I had to get that stomach ailment the day before New Year's eve, thus holding celebration to a minimum and making me an abnormally safe driver . . . even to the point of being able to find the car in among the bevy in parking lot . . . and driving it out . . . wonder if Provy Roosevelt erred when he referred to conditions of 1787, 1837 and 1887 not applying to 1937? . . . it's 1938 now, FDR . . .

IT WAS BOUND TO HAPPEN

After discussing the contributors and their contributions at some length in yesterday's column, the mail proceeded to bring no sparkling bits from around and about. I certainly can talk myself into some dandy lulls.

Wild, indeed, was the picture presented at the railroad station late Sunday morning when the southbound train, toted by two locomotives roared in. Back at the ticket window, standing ten deep, were people trying to pick up reservations—and the locomotives were panting outside the door. Guests whom I was putting aboard were separated from each other and from me—and I was carrying the luggage. A parlor car porter looked patronizingly at me as I skidded up to him wearing old trousers, leather jacket and overcoat.

"YOU going to Chicago?"

"Nope." I growled. But I got even. I gave him all the luggage, pushed our guest on the train, found the other and repeated the pushing.

The train left about then and I haven't found out yet how they got along without tickets. Anyway I was too busy dodging other people who had put guests on the train and had to jump off because the engineer decided to get going. Or maybe I should say engineers.

It was a beautiful morning, though.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

GOOSE GREASE

This time of year our Mother
Was always sure to say:
"Run out and tell your father
To kill a goose today."
So I'd run to the barnyard
And help him corner one.
We had to have some goose grease
Before the week was done.

She'd lift it to the rafters
To hang the whole night through.
Tomorrow's job was plucking
The feathers, but I knew
The afternoon would find it
Reposing in the pan.
Fat with a rich bread stuffing—
Good food for any man!

Goose grease and warm red flannel
Would cure the hardest cold,
So when we killed a turkey
My mother would not scold;
But she'd be disappointed
And sigh, just for a minute:
"There's one thing wrong with turkey—
There is no goose grease in it!"

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Postal authorities have taken up the hunt for the burglar who took checks, cash and blank postoffice money orders from a safe in the Schlitz Brothers downtown drugstore Sunday evening after he had started a fire in the building and sent in a fire alarm to distract attention.

Miss Louis Lutz has been added as a full-time staff member of the Appleton Public Library. The opening of an alley between Broad street and Main street will be considered at the first Menasha council meeting of the year. The matter, which has been pending for some time, was laid over from the last meeting.

Officers of the Robert Burns club were re-elected at a meeting at the home of G. W. Young, 205 W. North Water street, Neenah Monday evening. They are G. W. Young, president; J. D. EXCELLENT TONIC

Besides its paramount importance as a specific against malaria and its peculiar value in the prevention and "breaking up" of the cril ("colds" to you)—small doses have been shown to check the growth and multiplication of pneumococci and to promote leucocytosis, which is a vital part of immunity—quinine is famous for its tonic effects.

A tonic is a remedy which restores enfeebled function and promotes vigor and a sense of well-being. Probably no other remedy answers the description so well as quinine. It causes an increase not only in the number of white blood corpuscles or phagocytes (leucocytosis) but also in the number of red corpuscles. For the latter reason it is commonly prescribed by itself or in combination with iron or other remedies in anemia.

Quinine is especially effective as grains, in exophthalmic goitre, "tox-grains, in exophthalmic goitre, "toxic" goitre, "inward" goitre, hyperthyroidism, Grave's disease. Likewise in the many masked or unrecognized cases of hyperthyroidism that pass as "nervousness" or as "incipient tuberculosis." In any case where the thyroid gland is overactive quinine in daily dose of three to six grains restrains the excessive metabolism or tearing down of tissues and has a wholesome sedative influence on the nervous system.

In the healthy, normal, well-balanced individual there is a nice adjustment between activity or performance (exhibition) and restraint or control, both influences governed by the nervous system. Quinine tends to tone or invigorate the inhibitory side where this is weak. Hence it is a useful remedy in many cases of chorea (St. Vitus's dance) where spinal inhibition is weak, and in cases of enuresis (bed-wetting) where the normal inhibition control of the bladder function is deficient.

In the past twenty years I have recommended quinine, in doses of one or two grains of quinine sulphate in tablet or pill three times a day for two weeks or more, to many thousands of wretches to prevent stage fright. So far as I know the mortality rate among my clients is still zero, although many asking for the instructions seem certain they'll die when they face the audience or undergo the examination. The effect of quinine in assuaging this thing called stage fright is due to its tonic, invigorating influence upon spinal inhibition and the consequent restoration of self-confidence. Beauty of the treatment is that, even if it fails to do much good it can do no harm in any rate. Two or three weeks is long enough before the ordeal to take the quinine, as a rule.

Finally, quinine has for years been employed as a heart tonic especially where there is any irregularity in the heart beat. The tonic dose here is the same—two grains of quinine sulphate three times a day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Climate And Streptococcus
Does Streptococcus Hemolyticus causing sore throat thrive in the climate of the southwest in the winter time? (E. T. E.)

Answer—Some investigators have observed that patients with such infection have less frequent or severe exacerbations in the Southwest. Perhaps outdoor life and greater exposure of naked skin to sunlight in the Southwest, and lack of humidifying or air-conditioning in the houses and buildings in the north in the winter time would account for it.

Obsession Against Meat
Am 66, was told by doctor that I have high blood pressure. He suggested a casual diet but no specific exclusions. I am taking no meat. (Mrs. H. W. T.)

Answer—Meat has nothing to do with blood pressure. Your doctor gave you good advice. It is silly to "diet" for high blood pressure. At your age blood pressure should be high.

Phosphaturia
Please be so good as to explain the cause of phosphaturia. (L. J. B. W.)
Answer—That is precipitation of phosphates in the urine whenever the urine is less acid than usual, say when considerable fruit or vegetable are eaten. It seldom has any morbid significance.

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"

If January 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m.; from 2 to 4 p. m.; and from 9 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m.; from 4 to 6 p. m., and from 11 p. m., until midnight.

Lack of originality will be the cause of a great deal of criticism this day, so try to avoid imitating any persons actions or mannerisms. Many individual peculiarities, unless suppressed, will arouse a strong feeling of antagonism. The average person will have a feeling of repentance over some error or wrong he or she has done with the result that there will be many resolutions made to turn over a new leaf, and many conscience-stricken men and women will admit their mistakes. Be careful not to stir up a hornet's nest by ruthlessly criticizing public officials or acquaintances. Whoever goes around carrying a chip on his shoulder this day is likely to find a number of people waiting an opportunity to knock it off. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who recently have fallen in love will find it a great mistake to appear to be skeptical in any matter involving a question of truthfulness.

If a woman and January 5 is your birthday, you should put yourself out to make friends, for they will mean a great deal to you in the future. You must be loyal to those near to you, if you expect their staunch support, when you have need of it. You are probably very practical, inclined to be impetuous, and frequently governed by instinct. Through perseverance there is no limitation as to what you can accomplish in some line of constructive work. In matters involving a business policy you cannot afford to be negative. As an artist, musician, professional entertainer, demonstrator, interior decorator, writer or sales lady your run of luck and progress are apt to be gratifying. Your married life should be one continual benediction.

The child born on January 5, generally loves to be industriously engaged. This youngster should have lots of ambition, and possibly a thrifty spirit. Success is likely to crown its maturer efforts.

If a man, and January 5 is your natal day, your determination will enable you to overcome any difficulty that might confront you. As a scientist, chemist, lawyer, contractor, author, actor, salesman or musician the smiles of fortune probably will make you a happy and contented man.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Celebrities in Manhattan like European wars, continue to hog most of the headlines. . . . The town probably has more big names in it just now than in months.

Scene at 2 p. m. in midtown hotel: Joan Crawford calmly advancing across a crowded lobby. . . . She is loaded down with packages and an enormous corsage of orchids it being her contention, no doubt, that orchids are just as pretty in sunlight as after dark.

Although the late lunch hour crowd was flooding the hotel, only a few seemed to recognize Miss Crawford. They started in quiet wonder as she crossed the floor and dented the elevator with her chic French heels. . . . "That's Joan Crawford, the movie actress, isn't it?" . . . I looked up and saw a pretty girl asking questions of a grinning hell-hop. "Yes, ma'am," he replied.

"Oh-h-h," sighed the young woman, enchanted. "That's the first time I ever saw her!"

Here is a steady-eyed, darkly handsome young man in his late thirties who has scored a sensational rise to prominence in the last few years. He is Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, who cleaned up the vice rackets and chased most of the gangsters up to Sing Sing. He pauses to survey an excited group of young people who are milling about Robert Taylor, then moves off quietly.

In the front row at an opening the other night sat Russel Crouse, who, when he isn't authorizing hilarious musical shows, likes to make expeditions to Iceland or write books about murderers. . . . Crouse caused almost as much commotion as the actors, for his newest revue is that howling piece of nonsense starring Ed Wynn.

Barging into the Mayfair lobby I met, Elissa Landi, who recently completed her arduous chores as leading woman in "The Lady Has a Heart." . . . She has two books which one of the stores has just delivered, though whether they are to be gifts or merely additions to her own library she doesn't say.

That early French room, the Restaurant de la Paix, at St. Moritz, is overflowing with celebs and celebrities. Moving toward your table you pause to chat with Ruben Mamoulian, the director, who never leaves off his dark, shell-rim glasses; Mona McKruid, the Hungarian sculptress; Rose Hobart, the actress; Elsa Maxwell, party-giver; Gregory Taylor, hotel impresario; John Whitcomb, the illustrator; and Edith King, who is currently doing so well as Leda, the Swan, with the Lunts in that Theatre Guild show, "Amphytrion 38."

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—We take our science where we find it; and if we happen to find it in Senator Bilbo of Mississippi, be not afraid. His science had the overwhelming support of the senate.

Senator Bilbo was against the farm bill tentatively shaped and passed by congress. Like many another member of congress, he announced he was against it but would vote for it anyway.

But before voting for it, Senator Bilbo attached to it an amendment providing for establishment of four experimental laboratories in four sections of the country to find new ways of using agricultural products. That, he said, is the way out of the crop surplus problem—better than plowing under.

Science Marches On

"I remember reading in the law books of Mississippi a statute which made it the duty of the ginmer to destroy cottonseed at his gin," Bilbo recalled. "What do we find today?"

Well, said Bilbo, what we find today is that so many products are made from cottonseed that if the farmer could get a "proportionate" share of the return from that alone, he "could afford to grow cotton for the seed and throw away the lint."

From cottonseed, said Bilbo, come cooking oil, butter substitute, feed for cattle and fertilizer. Further, said he:

"There is a negro chemist down in Alabama who was once a slave and who has discovered 300 uses for the peanut. If the chemists will get busy on the cottonseed I have no doubt they will find as many uses for the cottonseed.

"What are the Japanese doing today? They are buying logs on the western seaboard, on the Pacific coast, hauling these logs all the way to Japan and converting the trees into cellulose, from which they are manufacturing rayon and shipping it back to the Pacific coast and the Atlantic coast and selling the rayon to America."

Mussolini found Italy short of fabrics, Senator Bilbo said, and now cloth is being made in Italy from milk. (However, a man in our office has a pair of Italian milk-pants and he thinks the cow might as well have kept them.)

That Amendment

A power company, wanting to sell more dynamite, Bilbo continued, learned how to make turpentine and resin from stumps and soon had farmers buying dynamite to blow out stumps to sell to factories. Mr. Bilbo listed 27 products made from stump juice, including perfume, disinfectants and stuff to remove hair from pigs.

WPA funds started a factory to make starch from sweet potatoes to replace a special starch imported from India. From what is left over, alcohol and glue can be made—the kind of glue the U. S. now imports for its stamps. Bilbo thought senators would prefer to lick sweet potato stamps, but he was shooting wide there. Senators don't lick stamps. Mostly they mail free.

Well, anyway, the amendment Senator Bilbo attached to the farm bill required the states to put up $1,000,000 for the four laboratories. Then the federal government would spend another million to equip them and a million a year to operate them. The senate snapped up the idea before the one-time wildman from Mississippi finished explaining it.

Surgeon Given Medal For Operation in Mine

Bulawayo, Rhodesia—An operation performed at great peril in the depths of a Rhodesian mine has won Dr. Robert Saunders the Edward Medal for gallantry.

When Howard Sheasby, 22, was trapped by the wrist by the fall of a rock in the depths of the Homestake mine, near Selukwe, South-east Rhodesia, early this year, Dr. Saunders descended with a party which went to the rescue.

Throughout the night the rescue squads removed stone in an effort to free the wrist. Dr. Saunders remained beside Sheasby to sustain him. At last it was decided that it was too dangerous to remove further rubble.

Then Dr. Saunders decided to amputate. Using a local anesthetic, he performed an operation to free Sheasby's arm. The operation was carried out against time and with ever-present danger. It was successful and Sheasby, who was conscious throughout the ordeal, was saved.

Lindbergh's Home Town Still Little Falls, Minn.

Little Falls, Minn.—Charles A. Lindbergh, who forsook the United States for England after the kidnapping and death of his first-born son, still refers to Little Falls as his "home town," according to H. A. Sternmann, London sculptor, visiting here.

Lindbergh sat for a bust which Sternmann was modeling early in 1937.

"He talked much of Little Falls during the six weeks of the sittings," Sternmann said. "While he was sitting for the bust he talked of Little Falls and Minnesota."

Sternmann, having studied the faces of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, said lines of suffering were imprinted on the faces of both. Nothing in their attitude or words, Sternmann said, indicated they planned to remain in England.

He recently purchased a boat from another port and brought it home for repainting.

President's Talk Attempts to Hold Radicals in Line

Also Strives to Hold Conservatives in Middle-Road Policy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — President Roosevelt's address to congress was a masterful exposition of the fundamental doctrine of the New Deal as it has been adjusted in spirit and scope to meet the new business recession.

Lawrence

To those who have lost faith, confidence, and even respect for Mr. Roosevelt's public utterances because of their changeable nature, the address will seem a new set of vague generalities. But to those who have been inclined to regard America's position in a restless world as one of groping for some form of governmental intervention in economic affairs which will not force us to fascism and yet will preserve our social order with its democratic processes, the message will seem a brave attempt to hold in line radicals and conservatives in a middle-of-the-road policy.

Which appraisal is preferred depends on whether you read the message on a background of world discontent and growing mass power everywhere, or whether you consider the present era merely the natural reaction of depression following the usual upward cycles in business.

The president, of course, has not yet convinced his opposition that a nation with such vast resources and wealth needs rigid controls of agriculture, of business and of labor such as he implies. But the objective—a regulated economy—is plainly outlined by Mr. Roosevelt as essential because somewhere between 7,000,000 and 10,000,000 persons are unemployed notwithstanding all the expenditure of billions of dollars in deficit financing and "pump priming."

There are phrases in the message which should be read and re-read. Taken in the smooth flow of words, they seem casual. Excepted and held up to view, they carry a new significance.

The warning to labor is a case in point. Even though tied up with a warning to capital, it is nevertheless rather novel for Mr. Roosevelt to be saying this:

Heavy Obligation
"The ownership of vast properties or the organization of thousands of workers creates a heavy obligation of public service. The power should not be sought or sanctioned unless the responsibility is accepted as well."

Then again, in another place, the president reiterates the idea thus: "In the case of labor, as in the case of capital, misrepresentation of the policy of the government of the United States is deception which will not long deceive. In both cases, we seek cooperation. In every case, power and responsibility must go hand in hand."

For years, the National Association of Manufacturers and kindred bodies have been saying through their spokesmen that assumption of power by labor organization must be commensurate with responsibility. The president takes their phrase and applies it to both capital and labor, but it is the first time he has said it bluntly to labor.

The utterance means that labor union organizers who have been going up and down the country, telling innocent workmen that they must join a union because the government of the United States wants them to do so, have misrepresented the policy of the government. Mr. Roosevelt strikes a blow at such deception.

Likewise, the president calls attention to the damage done by jurisdictional labor disputes which have retarded production. And he touches also on construction costs, with their "unnecessarily high prices for materials" and also "certain hourly wage scales."

So far, the conservatives will be inclined to agree, because all along they have been urging that the president say something to labor about its responsibility. But when the president returns to his purchasing power theory and says that there must be a minimum wage and maximum hour law, he runs into opposition from the business

Hoover Names New Public Enemy List

BY SIGRID ARNE
Washington — G. Man J. Edgar Hoover and his boys know of certain bank robbers they would like very much to have at the busy end of a forty-five.

These eight are Hoover's personal nominees for today's "public enemy" top-flighters. The kidnappers had their day as "Public Enemies One, Two and Three." But now, after four years of concentrating on them, Hoover has most of them behind bars or pushing up daisies.

So he has combed his records for the next batch of law-breakers he particularly wants to catch. He found the most dangerous fugitives today are bank robbers.

The bank-robber is the post-warite of the criminal world. He works and he trails hot, beginning maybe as a "punk" stealing cars for joy-rides, then breaking into stores, then passing a hot check or a roll of green-backs and he's off.

He's a dangerous man to round up. He has plenty of money to buy protection and to roam. He's desperate because if he's caught it means a long term. So he's likely to shoot it out with anyone who gets in his road.

G-men are hunting all eight of these men with a cool, careful cataloging of all facts. They find out the bandits' friends, what they like to wear, what they order for dinner, and even how they light a cigar.

When the picture becomes complete and the trail hot, G-men test their hair-triggers. They know it's going to mean shooting it out with any of this gang when they finally trap them.

world. To a certain extent, he tries to meet this opposition half-way by pointing out that "the reasonable person seeks a complete uniformity in wages in every part of the United States, nor does any reasonable person seek an immediate and drastic change from the lowest pay to the highest pay."

Pacific Labor
But, at best, Mr. Roosevelt knows the strength and character of the opposition to the minimum wage bill that has twice now been thrust back to committee in the house of representatives. He strives to pacify labor's opposition as well as capital's, but it remains to be seen whether an entirely new bill isn't necessary in order to win converts to his cause.

The most important revelation in the message is the president's declaration that he believes a goal of a hundred-billion-dollar income is possible and that it can be attained by redistribution of existing income. The political aspects of the speech can be brushed to one side, including the studied disavowal of the interpretation which had been widely placed on the Jackson-Ticks outburst. It is in the economics of the president's speech that the fallacies are to be found.

Mr. Roosevelt, for instance, thinks a total purchasing power increase can come by merely rearranging the income so that the lower brackets get more. He does not show how and where the increased volume of transactions must come from, out of which higher taxes are to be paid and higher purchasing power is to be created. This is still the nubbin of the problem. He evidently despairs of getting an increased national income out of an enlarged foreign trade because he pointedly refers to the way "foreign nations" eager to become self-sustaining or ready to put virgin land under the plough, are no longer buying our surpluses of cotton and wheat and lard and tobacco and fruit as they had before."

Where then is the increased purchasing power to come from? The nation that price-fixing by large industries has prevented a rise in national income through a forcing upward of prices and a consequent consumer resistance would sound more plausible if it business had within its control all the ingredients which enter the price structure. The biggest single item as a whole in the American price structure is labor. Collective bargaining or collective power has introduced new factors against which business men have not fought with economic facts, but they have too often accepted and passed it on to the public as the least costly way to meet the new monopoly or organized power of groups in fixing the price of labor nationally. The administration's assumption is that there is a big spread between cost of production and selling price, and yet the president in his address says:

Capital Essential
"Capital is essential. Reasonable earnings on capital are essential." The implication of the whole message is that the power of capital has been misused either through price-fixing or that there has been a sort of sabotage through the "selfish suspension of the employment of capital."

Here Mr. Roosevelt ventures on to strange ground. Nobody has been able to prove the thesis he champions. There are no facts on which to base the charge that, if business had been unselfish, prices would have been low. For the truth is nobody can prove that labor has been unselfish, either.

What can be proved is that America has had neither a "planned economy" nor "a regulated economy," nor even a "competitive economy," but an economy pressed on all sides by all kinds of controls, such as capital costs, labor costs, freight costs, tax costs and other items which result directly or indirectly from forces over which the price-making business man has no control at all.

Mr. Roosevelt appeals for cooperation between capital and labor and between all elements in the community. It is a patriotic and well-phrased appeal, but nowhere is there any suggestion of a program or a plan except more laws and more restrictions. And this is held by the president to be justified as one way of preserving democracy through the intervention of government. We are drifting slowly toward some governmental controls that may represent a cross between fascism and democracy. (Copyright, 1938)

St. Mary Quintet Will Begin Quest For Cage Honors

Last Team to Enter Catholic Valley Conference Competition

Menasha—St. Mary High school basketball players will open their pursuit of the Catholic Valley conference cage title Friday night at Little Chute. The St. John team currently leads the conference with an unblemished record.

The Zephyrs will be the last team to enter conference play but now start a part of the schedule which will give them five successive conference games.

To date the Zephyrs have a record of one victory in five non-conference games. The win was by a 15 to 14 count over St. Lawrence Junior college at Mount Calvary. Two defeats were received from Manitowoc of the Fox Valley conference by 22 to 18 and 20 to 15 scores; Kaukauna and Neenah also scored victories.

None of the teams offer the Zephyrs a comparison with conference opponents. However, the Zephyrs play a fast game of basketball which will give trouble to every opponent, particularly when the shooters have their eyes on the basket.

Their greatest difficulty so far has been inaccuracy in shooting, both from the field and from the free throw line. In both Manitowoc games they missed enough gift shots to turn the score in their favor. In the second Manitowoc game only Prunus was able to sink any baskets. Shots by other players rimmed out of hoop and toppled out to be smothered by the rangy Ship Builders.

Winter Sports are Getting Underway At Neenah School

Candidates for Wrestling, Boxing and Hockey Teams Practice

Neenah—Neenah High school's winter sports program started this week, with candidates for the wrestling, boxing and hockey teams holding practices.

Equipment for the boxing and wrestling teams was issued Monday, and the boxers and matmen will hold their first drill this afternoon at the Kimberly school gymnasium. The hockey team practiced during the Christmas vacation, but organized drills start Wednesday.

An intramural tournament is being planned for the week of Jan. 24 for the wrestlers and boxers to determine who will comprise the teams to represent the school in interscholastic competition. Home and home matches have been arranged with Kaukauna and Sturgeon Bay, and it is planned to arrange matches with Washington High school of Milwaukee. The wrestling team has lost only one match in four years and that was to the Milwaukee school.

George Christoph is coaching the wrestlers, while Harvey Leamon is coaching the boxers, and Marvin Olsen is the hockey coach. Tentative hockey games have been arranged with Menasha, East Green Bay and Appleton. The following have reported for the hockey team: Richard Larson, Emory Waters, Harvey Koerwitz, Blaze Anderson, Paul Felton, Douglas Nagel, Oliver Rarbing, Robert Schmidt, Robert Ryan, Donald Jape, Vernon Schulz, E. Hauke, Lester Stephan, Jack Meyer, John Nelson, Harold Borenz and Richard Lombard.

An intramural free throw tournament will start this week at the high school under the direction of Ole Jorgenson, physical education instructor. Contestants will be given 50 shots to determine class champions as well as school champions.

The intramural basketball tournament resumes play this afternoon and Friday.

The principal activity for the first months of the year will be in connection with a membership campaign in order to secure county charters for the district. Early consideration of candidates for the congressional post held by M. K. Reilly, Fond du Lac, also may be given by the party, according to Mr. Shepard.

A Compliment to Any Woman

Gray Persian lamb makes a suave jacket which fairly reeks with personality. It is tailored like a man's Chesterfield, designed with square shoulders and finished with a little black velvet collar. June Clayworth, motion picture actress, wears it with a steep black felt toque designed in the Scotch manner and accented with a big fabric bow on the right.

Declarer Aided by Wrong Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON
The greatest defect of the greatest players is that they are human. If they could carry on as glorified robots, using a bit of their vast store of knowledge in each situation as it arose, they probably never would make a mistake. The difficulty, therefore, is that we are not machines, and cannot maintain a high degree of concentration for long periods.

In the hand below, East could have thwarted declarer's beautiful play by an absurdly simple device. But, although this particular East is one of the finest and one of the most careful players in the world, he was caught napping.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 diamond Double
Pass 2 no trump Pass 3 no trump
Pass Pass Pass

North's double was none too good. It would have been more logical to have waited to see how the bidding would develop.

West opened the diamond queen, which was allowed to hold, and the jack was continued. Declarer won with the ace, and, feeling pretty hopeless about the whole thing, led a club toward dummy. West hopped up with the king, and persisted with diamonds (a spade shift would have clinched the defeat of the contract). Dummy's king won and now, as may be seen, declarer was up against it. He wanted to lead another club toward dummy, but was seriously embarrassed by lack of entries to both hands. It would be fatal to lead to the heart king, because then, when the opponents took the next club lead, they would knock out the spade ace and declarer never would be able to return to his own hand to cash his long heart. In case the heart suit broke, Nor would it do to take out the spade ace at this stage.

In desperation declarer attempted the one play that offered any chance for success. He led dummy's low heart and, when East dumped low, put in his own ten. This entry-making play led to success. Declarer's second club brought out West's ace. West cashed his diamond, but then was helpless. As it happened, he led the spade king. Declarer won with the ace, led to the heart ace, and played the club queen. When West's jack dropped declarer began to see daylight. The club ten was cashed, and then the heart queen was overtaken with the king. The heart suit breaking 3-3, declarer's fourth heart accounted for the ninth and fulfilling trick.

West bewailed the fact that he had not shifted to spades before losing his second club control. But East told him not to fret, that he

Life in Ancient Egypt

It-A BUSY KITCHEN 4,000 YEARS AGO
If you could go back to the Egypt of 4,000 years ago and visit a home where there was going to be a feast, you would have an interesting time. On entering the kitchen you would see perhaps a dozen persons at work preparing the food, and if you took a peep into the yard you might see an ox being killed.

A Servant
The persons in the kitchen would be hired servants or slaves; and you might be amazed to see that most or all of them were men. You would be seeing so many strange sights at once that it would be hard to guess what you would notice next. One surprising thing would certainly be the bald heads—but no, they are not quite bald. The head of each man has been shaved close to the skin—a custom in Egypt for all classes.

To one side of the room is a huge pot tended by two men. One is poking the fire, and the other is stirring the boiling meat. A third man is leaning over a low table while he cuts points of meat, and he has a helper who carries the meat to the cauldron.

Another man is using a kind of club to pound grain which a cook will soon be using and still another holds a goose over a fire, turning it carefully so that it will be well broiled.

In a corner of the kitchen is an oven, and a man is baking bread. He takes out loaves which are round like a pie and two or three inches thick. These are placed in the oblong tray, and a servant puts the tray on his head to carry the bread to another part of the room.

By this time, you realize that it is not quite polite for a guest to be looking at things in the kitchen, and you wonder how you ever got there anyway. Slipping out of a door, you go to another side of the house so that you may enter at the proper place for guests. In the back of your mind you are thinking that you are going to enjoy a pretty rich feast.

GOOD TASTE TODAY
BY EMILY POST

QUESTIONS ABOUT SILVER
Dear Mrs. Post: I inherited recently, from a distant relative, a beautiful old tea service. This is marked with her monogram, which is nothing like mine. I feel that to attempt to have her monogram removed (I don't know if such a thing is possible) would be cruel, because I know how much she loved her old silver. Is it possible, I mean of course from the standpoint of good taste, to add my own monogram to the pieces?

Answer: Yes, you have your monogram put on the opposite side. This is often done. Also, sometimes the second monogram is put beneath the first, but this can be done only on a plain piece of silver where there is plenty of space between the first monogram. The two monograms together of course tell the story of the silver at a glance: the lower one inherited from the upper. This is clear enough! But when there is a collection of five or so the story is not so easy to read.

Dear Mrs. Post: We need new window shades and I thought of buying Venetian blinds. But several of my neighbors warn me that they are going out of style. While I still think Venetian blinds would be most sensible, naturally when I buy anything new I don't want it to be out of date before we even get it home from the store. I have had a curious amount of looking old-fashioned soon enough. Will you give me your advice?

Answer: I don't know just how long Venetian blinds have been "in style," but certainly they have been used for many generations. True, there has been a "crash" for them during the last few years. Crazy comes and goes, but objects of such intrinsic worth as Venetian blinds remain in the houses of those who like them, forever. The reason why Venetian blinds were not so popular once as they now are, is that the old ones were very expensive to install. The modern ones, which are put up as easily as window shades, are not likely to be superseded because nothing else is so practical and at the same time so good looking. In other words, I would not be worried about their going out of style, if I were you, any more than I would be worried about having outside shutters go out of style, or chimneys or fireplaces.

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think it unsuitable to upholster dining room chairs in needle-point?

Answer: Dining room chairs upholstered in needle point are beautiful. The only reason why they are so seldom seen is that few people have the time to provide themselves with so great a quantity of needle-point.

A COLD SHOULD BE UNKNOWN
By H. SCHLINTZ
of Schlintz Bros. Co.

That enemy of mankind the "common cold" should be banished, and could be if human beings would all agree at the same time to live sensibly, moderately and wisely.

This would bring about a sort of healthy Arcadia, and seems about as near accomplishment as a "thousand years of peace."

However, there are rules that will keep the "common cold" at its distance. Consult a wise doctor and follow his advice faithfully.

That advice will contain along with certain simple health rules the patronage of a reliable pharmacist to supply medication and preventive remedies.

Cooperation With Teacher Is Best Policy for Parents

BY ANGELO PATRI
"Ma, teacher says I have to put new covers on my books."
"What's the idea? I put new covers on your books the first of the term. I can't be bothered covering your books every half-term."

"Teacher says so."
"I don't care what she says. I've got something else to do. If she had a family like mine maybe she wouldn't be so smart about giving orders to other people that meant more work. You tell her to cover them herself if she wants them covered. That's all."

"But Teacher says—"
"Don't bother me. I've told you."
Big brother looked up from the map he was making and said, "Hold up a minute, Ma. Did you see the kid's books lately?"

"No, I've got all I can do—"
"Yes, Ma, I know it. But you see the kid uses his books for a hop-scotch game every time he gets a chance and they're about the filthiest things you ever saw. How he can touch them without getting sick at his stomach is more than I can see. That's what's the matter. The teacher is afraid he will get some catching disease. And he sure will if he doesn't look out. Just take a look."

"My goodness, Chester Brown! And me spending time putting nice new covers on your books. Aren't you ashamed. The whole mess ought to be burned. That's what."

"Baw, aw-w-w, don't burn 'em. Teacher will bawl me out if you do, and she's mad at me anyway and how can I help it if my books get dirty?"

"You can keep them off the street, and you will, too. Strip off those filthy things. Go down to Sam's and bring me two sheets of heavy paper, and you'll sit down and make those covers if I have to stand over you for the rest of the night. The idea! Disgracing me like that. Filthy dirty."

Every day Teacher says something. Before flying into a temper about it find out why she said it, usually the reason is strong and clearly set. No sweater in classroom. What? No sweater on such cold days? But the classroom is heated to seventy, and sometimes more. O, that's different.

Teacher says: "Every absence must be terminated by a written explanation from father or mother." What? Think I've nothing to do but write notes? Did you ever hear of a child who played truant for a whole term without discovery? It has happened. You'd hate that.

Teacher says all reports must be signed by a parent and returned in three days. You think it's foolish? Ever hear of a report card that was lost, forged, fixed? You never can tell.

You see Teacher is in charge of your child for the better part of each day. She is a person of intelligence and authority and entitled to your respect and cooperation. It is your child she is trying to help, help her and you help him.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

My Neighbor Says—

In making coffee the water must be boiling at the top boiling point before it is poured on the coffee. Water at the highest possible temperature is necessary for the most efficient extraction of flavor, aroma and color.

The best remedy for scratched furniture is a mixture of beeswax and turpentine, the former melted in the turpentine until it is as thick as sirup. Pour a little onto a piece of woolen cloth and rub it well into the scratched part. Then polish quickly with dry flannel and the marks will almost disappear.

Clean tapestry-covered furniture by rubbing it with hot bran, reheating the bran as it gets cold. Have two dishes of bran going, one to be using and one to be in the oven heating.

Keep apples in a cool cellar. If you want them to last until Spring, wrap them in paper. It takes a little time to do this, but it makes it possible for you to have perfectly sound, solid fruit up to March or April. Use newspapers and cut out all the square pieces you will need before you begin.

Oxalic acid (poison). If used to move iron rust on linens, must be neutralized to prevent making holes in the material. It may be neutralized by mixing with a weak solution of ammonia water. Ammonia will remove iodine stains.

Before breaking a coconut, heat it in a moderate oven. Crack it and the shell will come off easily.

Big News Story of Year Breaking as 1937 Nears Its End

Business Ailments and Possible Cures Getting Headlines

BY C. E. HONCE

New York —(AP)—The extraordinary news year of 1937 ends with probably one of the big stories of the twelve-month in the making, although still not clearly defined—the business recession and current administrative steps to scotch it.

Such a story—first brought to sharp general attention by another severe stock market drop—really is difficult to fit into any cut-and-dried list of the "ten biggest stories of the year."

It hardly can be placed first because presently the recession may peter out and in future years become little more than a footnote in history; likewise it cannot be placed last because of its potentialities. Therefore it seems best to list it in a special tentative category as something still in the lap of the gods.

When the story finally is told there will be told with it one equally as interesting—the extent to which the New Deal, foe of "economic royalism," will have cooperated with big business in recovery moves.

10 TOP STORIES OF 1937

1. Roosevelt's campaign and re-election.
2. The Simpson case and Edward VIII's abdication.
3. Wars: Ethiopian and Spanish.
4. Execution of Bruno Hauptmann.
5. The Mary Astor child custody court fight.
6. Floods and drought.
7. Eleanor Holm's expulsion from the Olympic team.
8. Max Baer's knockout of Joe Louis.
9. CIO's split from the A. F. of L.
10. Congressman Zinn's death and, then, suicide.

Supreme Court Fight

Leaving the sphinx to answer this riddle, there is little difficulty in picking the outstanding story of the year on which the curtain already has gone down after some of the most dramatic, colorful and sensational scenes the American public ever has witnessed.

The Supreme Court struggle and its incredible aftermaths are history that will occupy many pages in the future story of America. When President Roosevelt in February presented his program for court revision—"court packing"—his opponents immediately termed it—skies were clear and fair sailing appeared ahead.

But as week succeeded week the skies clouded, presaging not a squall but a veritable hurricane. Democratic ranks were split while Republicans contentedly remained in the background twiddling thumbs. Staunch liberals such as Senator Burton K. Wheeler abandoned the ship. The pilot, Senator Joseph R. Robinson, was struck down. Finally came disaster.

But there was still more to come. During the months the battle was on, the Supreme Court, which Mr. Dooley said "follows the election returns," was handing down decisions about which not even a New Dealer could complain—the upholding of the Wagner labor relations act was one.

Labor At War

It appeared Roosevelt had won without court reorganization. In addition, Justice Van Devanter had retired, and Senator Robinson, New Deal leader, was slated for the supreme bench. When Robinson died the plum went to Senator Hugo L. Black, and a new climax was provided as Senator Black returned from abroad to tell the world in a radio address of his one-time connection with the Ku Klux Klan.

Running concurrently with the Supreme Court drama was another sensational play of many scenes, this time in the economic field, and affecting millions of Americans whether participants or merely lookers on.

This was the tremendous labor battle, both external and internal. Backed by the Wagner act, labor took to the field with banners, but it was a divided labor.

Two Wars Connected

The Committee for Industrial Organization, led by battling John L. Lewis, broke with the American Federation of Labor, went out to unionize horizontally the mass production industries; called, sometimes won and sometimes lost strikes in the steel, automobile and other huge businesses; perfected the sit-down strike as a labor weapon; signed a contract with Big Steel, and ended the year fencing with AFL in peace maneuvers. Strikes of all kinds earlier in the year produced bitterness and bloodshed, particularly in the Chicago steel district.

but comparative calm ruled as the year ended.

Nations At War

America is far from war and the alarms of war, but in a world growing constantly smaller it realizes that it has some possible future stake in the lining up of nations around the globe.

The Spanish civil war is a great story in itself, but now it has become a move on the larger international chess board.

The Japanese invasion of China likewise is a big story, but it also may only be the first act of a greater drama.

These two undeclared wars are being fought on almost opposite sides of the world, and yet events seem to be drawing them closer together.

Already they are connected tri-angulantly by three of the lines which the powers now call "axes." One runs from Berlin to Tokyo, another from Berlin to Rome, and Rome has just completed the triangle to Tokyo through recognition of Manchoukuo.

On the other side "axes" are being formed too. One runs from London to Paris and another from Paris to Moscow.

The United States is separated from the wars by two oceans, but President Roosevelt already has asked what can be done about a "quarantine."

Tragedies Of The War

In assessing great stories there are at least three sets of glasses through which they can be considered. There are stories which will have an effect on history; there are others which make great reading, such as the wedding of the Duke of Windsor to the American woman, Wallis Warfield; and there are still others of horrifying proportions, but only one-day wonders in the stream of history.

The latter was exemplified by the destruction of the Zeppelin Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N. J.

That same terror engendering interest attached to another great American tragedy of the year—the explosion in the New London, Texas, school that stunned a community as 297 of its children died horribly.

In the same category were the Mississippi and Ohio river floods. America is ever one to applaud high individual endeavor; it grieved at the loss of the daring woman flier, Amelia Earhart, in the Pacific.

Love and Politics

It is a democratic country but with a nostalgia for pomp and display; therefore the coronation of George VI of England received admiring attention.

It is one also to love a lover; and when that lover is an ex-king, it is a story for the year if not for the ages.

No two persons could be expected to agree on the ten biggest stories of a year. Many will say that the LaGuardia-Dewey victory against Tammany and the emergency of the American Labor party as a balance of power in New York city was one of the most significant stories of the period.

Others will see in the passing of John D. Rockefeller the end of an era. Then there are the strange liquidations in Soviet Russia to be considered. And the rise of a totalitarian state in Brazil. Does the latter represent the spread of fascism to the Americas, or is it simply the same old type of South American dictatorship with a new name?

And a sports follower likely would say that the feat of War Admiral in winning the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont stake and thus surpassing the records of his famous sire, Man O' War, was worth a place on any man's list. So there it is.

HALT THAT COLD!

Put the Brakes on It Fast With This Four-Way Treatment!

No cold can be given an inch! The more you give a cold, the more you do to hang yourself! No cold is a "light" cold. No cold can be ignored or neglected. The cold that is pooh-poohed today is the cold that takes a serious turn tomorrow.

Deal with a cold in a business-like manner. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection! Treat it with a cold medicine not a cure-all.

The Treatment That Answers!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

They are expressly a cold treatment, and not a "cure-all." They are internal medication. Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of colds.

First, they open the bowels. Second, they check the infection in the system. Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Grove's Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been in use over 40 years and are the largest-selling cold tablet in the world.

That, in itself, is enough to assure you of their efficacy and dependability.

Play Safe!

The moment you feel a cold coming on, do the wise thing. Go right to your drugstore for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets. Start taking the tablets immediately and you'll usually break up the cold in 24 hours.

Bromo Quinine tablets come in 35c and 60c sizes. The 60c size is the better "buy." It gives you almost 20 per cent more for your money.

Ask your drugstore for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) and insist upon getting what you ask for. It's your money you're spending!

Badgers Lose to Wildcats, 47-38

Wisconsin Defeated in First Conference Encounter

EVANSTON.—(7)—Northwestern opened its conference basketball season with a 47 to 38 victory over Wisconsin here last night.

After the lead changed hands several times in the first half, the Wildcats forged in front and were never headed, although the Badgers kept within striking distance all the way. The score at the half was 28 to 22 in favor of Northwestern.

Jean Smith, rangy forward, paced Northwestern to its first victory in five games. Smith scored sixteen points on seven baskets and two free throws for high point honors. The Badgers kept pace with the Wildcats during the early stages of the game on effective long range shooting by Howard Powell and Ernie Davis, the latter scoring three of his four goals in the first half.

Badgers Rally

Wisconsin made its most serious bid to overtake the Wildcats midway in the second half when they came within four points of tying the score at 35 to 31. The rally consisted of two long shots by George Rooney and Charles Jones. Fred Trenkle, Wildcat captain, nipped the spurt by rifling in two baskets from the side to widen the gap.

The box score:

Wisconsin—38	Northwestern—47

ILLINOIS UNDER FIRE

Chicago.—(7)—Illinois co-champions of the Big Ten, probably will get a good line this week on its chances of retaining the basketball honors shared with Minnesota last season.

The Illinois invade enemy territory tonight for a game with Indiana's strong Hoosiers and next Saturday night take on one of the Western conference's favored combinations, Michigan. Victory over both of those teams would stamp Coach Doug Mill's club as a hot early season standout.

Illinois and Indiana each will count on a pair of last year's sophomore stars for scoring punch. Lou Eudeau and Tom Nisbet are the Illinois point getters while Bill Johnson and Eric Andrews have been hitting the hoop consistently for the Hoosiers. Last season Illinois whipped Indiana twice.

Minnesota runs up against the strong Notre Dame quintet at Minneapolis tonight, with California playing Northwestern at Evanston in another non-title skirmish. Fans should get some comparative data from the Minnesota-Irish battle, as Illinois recently nipped Notre Dame to snap a long Irish winning streak.

All Big Ten teams will be in action Saturday night, with Purdue at Chicago; Indiana at Iowa; Michigan at Michigan; Minnesota at Wisconsin and Ohio State at Northwestern.

Coaches Endorse Two Major Grid Rule Changes for Season of 1938

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK.—(7)—Football coaches from all sections of America hailed out the "O. K." stamp today and applied it to the two major decisions of the national football rules committee in its weekend deliberations at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Only a few comments were tinged with doubt and even then, iron-tutors who weren't quite certain agreed the rules changes were good as far as they went.

Praise Changes

Most of them, however, gave unqualified praise to the change allowing three incomplete forward passes over the goal line without a touchback being ruled and the ball going to the offense team. They also endorsed the decision to bring the ball in 15 yards from the sideline instead of 10 on out-of-bounds plays. A few, however, regretted the decision not to permit forward passing from any point back of the line of scrimmage.

Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches rules committee who took part in the national committee's discussions, was an enthusiastic spokesman for his colleagues.

"The rules change that allows three incomplete forward passes to be thrown into the end zone in the same series of downs without the loss of the ball will be a great help to the offense near the goal line," he said. "This is one of the best innovations that has come into football in a long time. Now the defense must stay back and guard against a possible second or third pass. Thus all phases of attack will be greatly improved and there should be more scoring."

Endorse Action

Strong endorsements came from Matt Edwards, Purdue's acting coach who said the changes "will be of great assistance to 1938 quarterbacks." Lowell (Red) Dawson of Tulane, Josh Cody of Florida, Chet Wynne of Kentucky, Glenn Thistlethwaite of Richmond, and Ike Armstrong of Utah.

Fred Thomson of Arkansas regretted that the five-yard restriction was not removed from forward passes but in rebuttal, Clyde Warren, well-known New England official, said "that would drive a lot of coaches crazy. It's all right for the pros but, remember, they're more mature than college and high school players."

A number of leading coaches, among them Howard Jones, Southern California, Bill Spaulding, University of California at Los Angeles; Harry Hughes, Colorado State; Bill Kern, Carnegie Tech; and John P. (Little) Cline of the Chicago Cubs agreed that the changes would aid the attack although not by any big margin.

Lawrence Alumni Cagers Give Vikings Battle but Lose by Score of 38 to 28

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

ONE of the greatest collections of has been college basketball players ever assembled, gathered last night at Alexander gymnasium of Lawrence college under the colors of the Lawrence alumni squad and played the Viking varsity. The varsity won, 38 to 28.

The statement that the Vikings opponents were has been is not a disparaging remark. The former proteges of Coach Art Denney were in great enough numbers to be changed often because their wind didn't last as long as in olden days, but they still possessed enough tricks of the trade to make an excellent showing and give the present crop of Vikings a busy evening.

The varsity started with Mike Gochauer, by one guard and Jim Straubel, a little heavier and slower, at the other, big Benny Rafath at center where the weight around his middle didn't help any and showed evidence of a fairly easy life, and Cliff Osen and Bill Foote at the forwards. In the two forwards the grads had two of the fastest lads ever to trot on the Lawrence court.

Put Up Good Defense

Among the others who saw action were Bert Collar, center, Eddie Powers, still rather lithe and graceful, Bud Ashman, as good a guard as ever, Frank Dean, just as slow but just as good at handling the ball, Norbert Vanderbloemen, a great guard of a couple seasons back from West DePore and now with the conservation commission, west.

Meet Knox Friday

With Lawrence opening the Mid-west conference season Friday night with Knox here, indications are the Vikes will go well against rather inexperienced clubs like the Lawrence club, but probably will have a lot of trouble against veteran squads.

Lawrence still hasn't a center who can play consistently good ball. Denney has tried every candidate at the post and all lack something. Last evening he attempted to use Cliff Burton at the middle position but he drifted into his old forward ways too easily.

Whatever success Lawrence has otherwise probably will depend on the two sophomores in key positions. Ken Buesing at guard and Wallie Cape at forward. If they can shoot as consistently as last night the outlook is good. Both have plenty of speed and Buesing drives in for a nice shot at the hoop. Cape will have to do most of the cutting across court and has a neat shot when he's hitting. He checked four last evening and in a recent practice dumped five or six in a row.

Last night's box score:

Lawrence—38	Alumni—28
Burton, f 2 2 3	Osen, f 5 0 1

THE LURE OF WINTER SPORTS

By Cal Johnson

NOW COMES THE SEASON for outdoor recreation which contributes so much toward robust health, fun and happiness. Snow and ice are the nucleus around which are built many forms of winter sports and thousands of new devotees of skiing, snowshoeing, skating, coasting and tobogganing are born every year in communities where cold weather sports are taking a firm hold on both young and old inhabitants.

Skating and skiing perhaps rank one and two in winter sports, due somewhat to the competitive possibilities surrounding the sports. Amateur contests sponsored in individual communities always draw huge crowds and the publicity received naturally tends to create interest among those who have not as yet tried gliding over the slippery ice on a pair of stream-lined silver blades or skinned down hill on a pair of skis.

Skiing is indeed an exhilarating form of outdoor recreation and a sport which requires skill and poise. While ski-jumping is a recreation confined mostly to the younger element—although many old timers excel at the sport—cross country skiing and sliding down smooth hills at a medium speed can be safely enjoyed by all ages. It is much a matter of the individual's ability to control his balance, coupled with a certain amount of nerve. When skiing in deep, soft snow there is no chance of getting hurt—and the tumble that may occur is always enjoyed, especially by onlookers.

Snow covered woodlands are always beautiful and a snow-shoe hike into the country usually leads to locations that are rarely seen by individuals during the winter. The hills and valleys take on a different aspect after Jack Frost has arrived and old man Winter places a blanket of fluffy white snow over nature's playground. A snow-shoe trek into the deep forest and marshlands teems with surprises and thrills. One will see the tracks of wild animals, each series of foot prints telling a vivid story. One may see the tracks of a rabbit, with the stalking footprints of a weasel in pursuit—or the ruffled and blood stained snow where an owl captured its prey. The quietness and solitude of nature during mid-winter holds a peculiar fascination to all outdoor lovers and the snow-shoe enthusiast can enjoy it to the fullest extent as he, or she, can penetrate the shadowed thickets, the hills and vales upon the surface of the wintry snows and view a wonderland of beauty and grace unknown to those who prefer to hug the fire-side when the cold blasts come down from the north.

Tobogganing is a form of winter sport that offers plenty of real excitement for everyone. Many sections of the country have established community slides and toboggan parties are nightly occurrences throughout the winter months. The huge slides established in Montreal, Quebec, in the state of New York and in other parts of the United States are examples of what can be done in any community where hills exist. The swift ride down the longest hill is ample reward for the walk back up again—and who can deny the invigorating exercise this great outdoor sport offers the individual?

All followers of winter sports contribute color and fascination to cold weather fun these days with the vivid patterned garments now worn. Dressing properly has much to do toward making the sport comfortable and enjoyable. Warm clothing naturally contributes to the success of all winter outdoor recreation and the colorful uniforms of red, yellow, green and what-not makes the outdoors look like a fairyland of pixies, all bent on enjoying themselves amidst a world of snowy splendor.

Steele - Apostoli Bout Will Renew Battler's Feud

Personal Feelings Only Thing at Stake in New York Scrap

BY GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK.—(7)—Freddie Steele, the middleweight champion, and Fred Apostoli, his most persistent challenger, are fighting a 12-rounder at the Garden Friday night, with exactly nothing at stake.

Even should Apostoli win by a knockout, which is highly unlikely, he wouldn't gain anything more than personal satisfaction because Steele is coming in over the 160-pound limit.

It's all very confusing and also amusing when you learn the inside of the set-up. There's a long-standing feud between the two Freddie's, as well as between their managers, and the betting is that Apostoli never will get a clean shot at Steele's crown.

Wallop Steele

It seems that some four years ago Steele, already an established ring star, went down to San Francisco for a fight. He needed some sparring partners, and among those answering the call was the young and ambitious apostoli, who was fighting as an amateur when he wasn't bell-hopping.

All Steele wanted was a light sparring session, but the opportunity was too great for Apostoli. Some of his pals were there to watch him. He swarmed all over Steele, and before the professional from Tacoma could recover from his astonishment, he had been banged about something fearful. Such things do happen.

Hasn't Forgotten

It burned Steele to a crisp, and his friends declare he hasn't even begun to forget. He knocked Apostoli kicking the next time they met, as professionals, and has every intention of doing it again Friday night, without giving Apostoli the satisfaction even of fighting for the title.

To make the situation louder and funnier, Larry White, who pilots Apostoli, used to be the manager of Young Corbett, the welterweight king. Steele, then a welterweight, himself, tried until he was blue in the face to get a crack at Corbett's diadem but he never did.

But for their feelings of mutual suspicion, the two Freddie's could have made considerably more money out of Friday's fight than they will. New York never gets unduly excited about non-title bouts.

Boxing Board Suspends Three

"Baby Face" Reese, Second, Referee Andrews Are Set Down

Milwaukee.—Wisconsin's boxing commission took swift action Monday in the case of People versus George Ales, "Baby Face" Breesee and Referee Freddie Andrews.

Ales, manager of Breesee, was handed a six months' suspension as a second in Wisconsin for "un gentlemanly conduct" following the Breesee-Jimmy Le Grone bout at the Auditorium New Year's day.

Breesee was suspended for 30 days for continual foul tactics after he had been warned numerous times.

Referee Andrews was set down for 30 days because the commission didn't approve his actions during the semi-vindup in which he officiated, and after the fight.

Andrews, the commissioners decided, took the entire affair too lightly and wasn't on his toes during the Orville Drouillard-Kid Sila fight—the bout which immediately followed the Breesee-Le Grone bout which Andrews stopped in the fifth round and awarded to Le Grone.

Kahn Reprimanded

Ales' suspension was made a lengthy one, because the commission felt he ran way out of bounds in an attempt to hang a kayo on Andrews after the decision was made and because he continued his belligerent activities after he had jumped out of the ring.

Because Ales was warned before the fight by Joe Schweitzer that Andrews might lose Breesee out of the ring if he used any foul tactics, the commission talked to Schweitzer and forbade him ever to go into the dressing room at any fight in Milwaukee in the future.

Harry Kahn, an aide to Ales New Year's day, was severely reprimanded by the commission because he jumped into the ring after the bout and tried to find out what all the commotion was about. Kahn convinced the commission he wasn't harboring any evil intentions, so there was no suspension handed out in his case.

Postponement of tonight's Outagamie County Basketball league game between Hortonville and Town Taxi of Appleton at Hortonville, was announced this morning. Hortonville has been having tough luck in its games and with a rather heavy expense connected with putting on games in the Hortonville auditorium, has asked postponement pending financial help the villagers will seek from merchants.

Two other games are scheduled for this evening. Kaukauna's Knights of Columbus will invade the armory for a game with Company D and Black Creek will oppose the Little Chute Legion at Little Chute.

Kaukauna has won two starts and lost two so far this season while the Guards have one win and two defeats and one game to be played. The Kaukauna team will show Kaukauna and Little Chute talent. Among the Kaws is Norbert Berg who played for Appleton High school a few years back.

The game at Little Chute will have the Legion attempting to hang up its fifth straight win against the long range Black Creek outfit. Black Creek's prospects are looking up since the villagers defeated Seymour a week ago. A game featuring girls teams will be played as a preliminary to the County league game.

Many Nationalities are Represented on M. U. Squad

NEW YORK — (P) — Bronko Nagurski has submitted an entry in a big lying contest being conducted by the International Falls (Minn.) Daily Journal. "Nope...Bronko didn't give 'em that old one about wrestling being on the up and up...Everyone around here is very low because of Freddie Neil's sad death...He was a fine fellow, a crack news-paper man and nobody ever had a better friend...If I didn't know the Brooklyn middleweight keeps knocking out fellows like George Black and Billy Conn, the Messrs. Freddy Steele and Fred Apostoli will have to make more room in the top flight...Harry Cooper, last year's top money winner, is our winter book favorite to win the 1938 open."

New York World-Telegram prints a picture of Tony Gato going after a huge glass of beer...That's merely Tony's way of training for his fights...The Marquette basketball team ought to join a League of Nations...It has a German, Englishman, Bohemian, Norwegian and Hungarian in the regular lineup, while the first line of reserves includes a

European Net Star Says Budge Should Become Pro

NEW YORK — (P) — Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian tennis pro and present open champion, who once coached the American Davis cup team, is back in the United States with decided ideas on the game and its players.

The European veteran, who has won a half-dozen titles, will coach in Florida this winter and defend his open title in April. He returned from Europe and a visit home last week. He has played with all the greats from Bill Tilden to Don Budge and he goes out on a limb with everyone else in praise of Budge—as an amateur.

Should Turn Pro
"No amateur could beat Budge last year," he said. "Von Cramm comes close and in another year Bobby Riggs, maybe. But beat him now, no, I do not know whether he will turn pro or not. Myself I think it is foolish he does not, but that is my view. A nice boy, Donny. Maybe he thinks it best to be amateur."

The Czech is sure that young Bobby Riggs, ranked No. 2 nationally, would be able to carry on capably if Budge turned pro.

"Riggs is marvelous. Very strong and still getting better. He is a kid, and of course, he doesn't pace himself. You see him against Von Cramm? An older player would have won. But Riggs, he burns himself out. Wait until next year."

Kozeluh wants a real open tennis tournament in which the world's top flight amateurs and pros would meet as they do in golf to crown what he calls "the real champion."

The Prettiest Sport

FOOTWORK

First, Bess Ehrhardt, one of the prettiest sport's prettiest figures, is caught displaying some of the grace and skill that has made her the successor to the spotlight formerly held by Sonja Henie.

ROONEY'S LUCK REPORTED BAD
Miami, Fla. — (P) — Art Rooney, the new "Pittsburgh Phil," now minus his praying partner, is not finding the Tropical park race track as easy as he did Empire City and Saratoga.

Up north, Rooney is reputed to have won $108,000 in one day betting the Saratoga races when accompanied by a friend who prayed for him to win. He is said to have been that much ahead when his friend advised him to go home.

"If you don't," the friend is quoted as saying, "I'll pray against you." Rooney stayed with the races and his friend went home, evidently keeping his word. Anyway, those who claim to know say Rooney has lost heavily at the Florida track.

and emerged victor by some twelve points.

A More Elaborate Play
Still another variation of the pivot play is diagramed as follows:

The detailed explanation of the play goes like this: O-5 gives the pivot man, O-1 a baseball pass. O-2 starts cutting between O-3 and O-4. O-3 follows O-2 and bumps into O-2 who has crossed to block for O-2. O-4 follows O-3 and is likewise walking into the block. O-2 is now cutting up the floor and crosses O-4 who cuts behind him. O-2 chases O-4 and is blocked out by the play by the crossing O-2. O-4 now continues unmoled up the right side of the court, where he receives a pass from O-1 for the short dribble and lay-up shot. If O-4 returns the ball to O-1 who takes the lay-up shot.

Start Investigation Of Death in Chicago

Chicago — (P) — Police pledged to gather bits of evidence today to determine whether Ralph W. Thompson, 31, editor of the magazine, Public Safety, was accidentally killed in a fall or was slain.

Thompson's body was found on the concrete loading platform of a loop building. His skull was fractured and his hands were in his coat pocket.

Sergeant Charles Bellstrom and other investigators pointed out that, logically, a person starting to topple would attempt to break the fall by throwing out his hands.

A post-mortem examination showed that a fracture at the back of the skull caused death.

Paul Jones, director of publicity for the National Safety council, which publishes the magazine, told police that Thompson received a two weeks' salary check last Friday, and expressed fear that he might have been slugged.

And inquest into the young man's death was continued until Jan. 13.

Two's Company by MARGARET GUION-HERZOG

THE CHARACTERS
Nina, Junior League and ex-debutante, impulsively married David, hoping to end her intense love for her stepfather. Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather back from a long cruise, resumes his love-making to Nina.
Honey, Nina's gay childish mother, is wild about Richard and does not suspect the strong attraction between him and Nina.
David, a bright young auto salesman on a small salary, adores Nina but they argue over money matters.
Chapter 40
'To Belong To You'
A T Yonkers they cut over to the Sawmill River road. Some of the maples were beginning to turn, but the rain had washed the grass a lovely, young green again.
There were puffy, autumny clouds in the sky.
Richard let the Renault out...
65...70... They were stopped by a parkway motor-cycle cop, and Richard talked himself out of a ticket by using just the right amount of authority.
"Of course I was breaking the law, Officer, but she's brand new, just broken in enough to test her speed... You know how it is... Paddy McLean, in Dobbs Ferry, is a personal friend of mine. Officer... Yes... You're a good sport, man. Thanks, I'll be careful."
Richard kept to a conservative 55. At Ardley they turned off, and after a few miles drove in between high entrance gates to a long, brick house, that overlooked the Hudson.
"What's this, Richard? It isn't an inn, is it?"
And he said: "No. A friend of mine--Conroy--lives here, but he's wintering in Europe. Met him, this summer... He told me to use the place whenever I liked. His man used to valet for us both, in London, once. We'll be nicely--alone."
Richard had telephoned, so that the butler was ready for them.
"I prepared the loggia, Mr. Chal-loner, sir."
They walked through a wide hall, and a living-room--shrouded, not too gloomily, in slip-covers, and onto the veranda.
A golden sun was getting all ready to sink later, behind the Palisades.
There were golden asters, and bronze chrysanthemums in a vase on the table.
The man lit the flame under a silver kettle, brought cakes and sandwiches, and stronger beverage in a decanter, which he placed on a low stand, and departed.
A smooth, sloping lawn, giant oak trees, and bright sky formed a frame for the river.
A white yacht glided by.
Nina said: "We'll be on a boat some day... you and I."
And Richard kissed her.
Tea, itself was a joke, really.
Nina said: "You read things about: 'her lovely hands fluttered among the tea things, like two white doves'... but I'm making a mess of it. I'm too excited--being with you."
"I'm not exactly level-headed, at the moment, either, you know."
"Shall we abandon this?... Wrap up a few sandwiches and dump them out of the car, later, so as not to hurt the man's feelings?"
Richard laughed.
"That's like you. But forget the man. Think of my feelings... 'I do--I do--I do.'"
She took off her hat and threw it high up in the air.
It fell down on top of the chrysanthemums, and she left it there.
She ran both hands through her hair.

Council to Act on Plan to Abolish City Park Board

Expect Attorney to Present Ordinance at Meeting Tonight

Kaukauna—The first council meeting of the year, scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight in the council rooms at the municipal building, will find a variety of matters before the body. Changing of the method of paying taxes, making the new sewage plant pay its operation costs, abolishing the city park board—these are the most important.

The council has already made up its collective mind to eliminate the park board, originally established in 1914, and place the parks, material and land under the direction of the board of public works. The suggestion was first made by Mayor Lewis F. Nelson two months ago, as a measure of economy.

At the last meeting the council directed City Attorney H. P. McAndrews to draw up an ordinance abolishing the park board, for presentation at tonight's meeting. Unless the council turns about and rescinds its formal action, it has been the case before the park board will be abolished tonight.

May Discuss Taxes
The council will hold action on a proposal to allow Kaukauna residents to pay their taxes in coming years on more than one installment, when such a suggestion was presented at the last meeting. The subject may come up again tonight. City Attorney McAndrews told the council at that time that the taxpayer has the right under the law to make his payments as little as $5 the first time and in multiples of ten thereafter. The new proposal would apply only to taxes being paid in advance for use in 1939 and would not include this year's levy.

A report may be given to the council on the advisability of assessing Kaukauna residents to pay for the cost of operating the newly erected sewage disposal plant. A proposal has been made that residents pay according to their consumption, as is the case in other cities, and a committee appointed to investigate this suggestion.

Charley Schell, manager of the alleys, said, with only league bowling being allowed tonight, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Second place in the single class so far is Joseph Muench, Neenah, who has a 608 series to his credit. A little chute duo, the Rev. James Geyer and his son, are in front of all the doubles teams with a count of 1172. Second place goes to the Wrightstown team of Dr. Frank Salava and Reuben Knuth with a total of 1162.

Library Gets New Books on Cooking, Stamp Collecting

Kaukauna—Cooks and stamp collectors will be especially interested in "America's Cook Book," and "Collecting Stamps for Fun and Profit," two new additions to the Kaukauna Public library. The former, compiled by the Home Institute of the New York Herald Tribune, offers over 3,000 recipes tested and approved. In addition to the recipes the problems of menu planning, selecting and purchasing food, cooking, table setting and serving are discussed.

The latter is a complete guide to the hobby of collecting stamps, and contains a brief history of the postal service, a non-technical outline of the manufacture of stamps and suggestions for profit from a collection.

Other recent additions to the library are "Normal Mind," by Burnham, "Origin of the Species and Descent of Man," by Darwin, "History of the United States," by Fish and Wilson, "Modern World History," by Flick, "Being Well-born," by Guyer, "Biological Foundations of Safety," by Dendy, "History of the American Frontier," by Tansley, "Field Book of Ponds and Streams," by Morgan, "Recent History of the United States," by Tansley, "Great Powers in World Politics," by Simonds and Emery, "Oxford Book of English Verse," by Quiller-Couch, "Medieval and Modern Times," by Robinson, "Our Environment," by Wood and Carpenter, "Map Makers," by Cotter and Jaffee, "Man and the Vertebrates," by Romer.

Under The Capitol Dome

By John Wyngaard
Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent

Madison—The Wisconsin dairy farmer, by virtue of his complete dependence on a single source of income for himself and his family, should back government legislation designed to stabilize the price of farm products and conserve soil fertility.

That's the advice of Walter A. Acker, secretary of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation.

Acker also believes that Wisconsin to continue to exist must adopt a soil conservation program, that the "ever normal granary" is an excellent idea, and that northern and southern farmers should stop suspecting each other and cooperate. For today, he says, they are more than ever dependent on each other as a market and source of income, with the closing of many foreign markets to American agricultural produce.

Government Lawyers Face a Shakeup

The word has gone out in the state capital that all of the state's legal talent is shortly to be consolidated in a single department, the attorney general's office now headed by Orland S. Loomis.

For many months Loomis has been saying in speeches and in private conversations around the capitol that there is little excuse for scattering state government legal departments since the makers of the Wisconsin government specified that the attorney general shall be the chief legal officer of the state.

At present, and for many years past, many of the larger state departments, such as the banking department, department of agriculture, industrial commission, public service commission, and others have had one, two or a whole staff of legal counsel, all working under Schramm and family, Mrs. George Wolfshmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Engel, Mrs. Anna Bloedorn, daughters, Elvera and Ruth, and John Jooss.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Kluge entertained at their home Tuesday evening in honor of their sixteenth wedding anniversary. A social evening was enjoyed, followed by a midnight lunch. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Ecker of Hilbert, Edward Clifford of Antigo, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schuh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ecker, Mr. and Mrs. William Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keller, Mrs. Frances Kleiber, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eick, Mr. and Mrs. John Steinert and Louis Fritz. Those who received prizes were William Schuh, William Ross, Robert Eick and consolation to Mrs. Edward Keller.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Paustian entertained friends at a 6 o'clock dinner at their home New Year's day. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zander, Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Johnson, Miss Anna and Charles Barnard and Mrs. William Koch.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Burich entertained at a Sunday dinner at their home. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Anna Burich, Mr. and Mrs. Max Gozinski of Sheboygan Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto F. Burich of Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isack entertained friends and relatives at their home Thursday evening. Games were played and a midnight lunch was served to Mr. and Mrs. E. Janke and son, Everett, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Kluge, Mr. and Mrs. William rected by the 1937 legislature has washed them from the payroll. Sol didn't like it, but the law is specific. It tells him this year how much he may spend on the collection of beer and liquor taxes. Previously it has been a matter of conscience and responsibility to the electorate.

At the same time there is a considerable interest in the outcome of the bureau of personnel examinations for the last, and most important, jobs in the division. Competition was keen for the administrative posts. More than 80 applicants, for instance, wrote the examination for the job of "editor" in the department. The editor prepares blurbs on division activities and speeches for department bigwigs.

Odds and Ends
Senator Chester Dempsey of Hartland, a Democrat who has never been known to speak more than once or twice during a legislative session, and then only briefly, has issued a pointed public statement on the quality of leadership possessed by Dr. Glenn E. Felt, now a middle-western farm editor. "Farmers are all fed up on fancy verbal fireworks and professional friends. We are crying out for a hard-boiled, militant leader on the order of John L. Lewis," says this conservative Democratic legislator, adding that "continues to carry water on both shoulders, the Progressive leaders in Wisconsin need have no fear of him and the Republicans are building up a man of straw." ... New Dealer Robert H. Jackson's attack on business monopolies drew this from George Kull, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association.

"Business is jittery enough now. It has been picked at, pecked at and pecked at so long, its nerves are raw and its courage impaired. If only some politicians could find a way of getting themselves elected with something other than an anti-business war cry, business would rapidly move forward."

HIT BY WAR
Calcutta.—The war in China is responsible for new victims—dealers in illicit narcotics. The supply of illicit cocaine, mostly derived from China and Japan, has dried up.

No single seizure of any large amount of contraband cocaine has been made since the fighting in China began. Smugglers are also finding it difficult to obtain opium in profitable quantities.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York (P)—With armament issues conspicuous, selected stocks today rallied 1 to 6 points at the post.

It was a crawling advance, however, with the ticker tape frequently at a standstill. Profit realizing also tempered the upturn.

Steels were bellwethers of the come-back, with aircrafts, coppers and electric equipments and automobiles not far behind. But in utilities, although generally higher, were less responsive. Tobaccoes exhibited strength. Numerous specialties were in demand.

Stock transfers were around 1,000,000 shares.

Prominent on the climb were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Wright Aeronautical, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Hudson, General Motors, Crown Cork, Du Pont, Philip Morris, American Tobacco, B. F. Goodrich, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, American Smelting and U. S. Rubber.

Today's Market At a Glance

New York (P)—Stocks strong; steel leads rally.

Bonds mixed; secondary rails continue under pressure.

Curb higher; oils and specialties in demand.

Foreign exchange easy; sterling, franc decline.

Cotton very steady; firm stocks and wheat.

Sugar improved; steady spot market.

Coffee quiet; disappointing Brazilian support.

Chicago — Wheat strong; Liverpool market soars.

Corn higher; export business enlarged.

Cattle steady to firm.

Hogs 10-15 higher.

Industrial Issues Gain on Bond Market

New York (P)—Heavy selling pounded down many secondary rail issues in the bond market today but industrial corporates fared better, with a number of good gains registered.

Erle issues were the worst sufferers in the earlier division, some of them dropping more than 20 points in a continuation of the drop registered by that road's default yesterday on interest on a number of loans.

In the industrial list gainers included American and Foreign Power, 5s, International Telephone, 5s, Armour of Delaware, 4s, Bethlehem Steel 4 1/2s and Loew's 3 1/2s.

Election May be Held in Strike at Hamilton Plant

Both Sides Air Views at State Labor Board Hearing

New London—Both sides of the Hamilton and Sons Canning company strike controversy were aired at a hearing at the city hall yesterday afternoon before a representative of the state labor relations board. Carl J. Marsh, board examiner, conducted a hearing to gather evidence for the board to decide whether an election among employees was advisable to determine bargaining majority.

All questions and details pertaining to such an election were agreed upon by all parties present, but Marsh explained that such procedure did not assure an election would be held but that the information would hasten the process should the board so decide. A short conference was held in private after the hearing.

Evidence gathered yesterday will be discussed by the board at Madison and a decision will be rendered as soon as possible.

It was agreed, after several discussions in recess, that in case of an election the payroll for the week of Nov. 20 would be used, excluding six plant foremen and office workers from the rolls as it would be an election of production employees only. Canning Factory Employees local 1107 would be the only bargaining agency listed on the ballot and the vote would be yes or no.

Vote in City Hall

The city hall was designated as the place for the proposed election which would be held as soon as possible after the decision of the labor board. If it so decides. Each party, organized and non-organized employees and the employer, were asked to appoint two tellers to conduct the election. The Hamilton company will furnish copies of the payroll agreed upon.

The council chambers of the city hall were jammed with Hamilton employees at the hearing. A delegation of union employees filled one side of the hall while non-union employees crowded with spectators on the other side.

Representing the petitioners, the non-union employees, were Attorney E. W. Wendlandt and Attorney Francis A. Werner. The labor organization conducting the strike was represented by Robert McFarlin, Milwaukee organizer, Ellis Hunter, business agent, and officers of the New London local. The Hamilton company was represented by Henry Hamilton, president.

After hearing the evidence, Examiner Marsh permitted both sides of the strike controversy, in the persons of McFarlin and Henry Hamilton, to tell their side of the story for the benefit of listeners.

Protests Election

McFarlin protested against an election of employees at all because, he said, it would only delay the signing of an agreement between the parties. He charged financial interests in the city and city officials with interfering with negotiations when they were on the verge of reaching an agreement.

He said he had sworn affidavits of union discrimination on the part of the Hamilton company. On Nov. 17, he said, the local union organization was formed and the following Saturday all union members were laid off.

The International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers' Union, with which the Canning Factory local is affiliated, is a strong union well able to back its demands, the organizer declared. He said it has raised the standards of living in every community where it organized and contented the wages of 60 cents an hour which they are asking here are not unfair or unjust. Others are paying it elsewhere, he said, in competition with the New London plant and that production here was such that one-fifth cent on each can of the finished product would pay all the wages they ask. He warned the plant here would never reopen except under the union's conditions.

In direct rebuttal to McFarlin's statements Henry Hamilton first denied union discrimination among employees. He said all department employees had been laid off at the end of the seasonal operations and that at the time the management was without knowledge of union affiliations of any of the workers. About 80 cabbage cutters were laid off around Nov. 17 and later, as shipments slackened the two cannery lines at the plant were reduced to one on alternate shifts.

Ready To Negotiate

Hamilton said the company was never averse to organized labor and was willing to deal with the majority, one reason for the proposed election. He said he felt an injustice was done to all employees of the company by the union group when it prevented others from working without first advancing a proposal for negotiations. He agreed no rapid progress had been made because of continually arising obstacles but

Firemen Will Fete Best Salesmen of Tickets for Party

New London—New London Fire Department members will entertain themselves at a feed of some sort Monday evening, Jan. 17, as the result of the dance ticket sale wagers decided at the regular meeting of the department last night. Because Matt Nesbitt and Harvey Greenlaw, who wagers they could sell as many tickets as all 12 others of the department together came very close to fulfilling their promise, the opposing group generously decided to fete them anyway.

The firemen put out a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Anna Burmeister, 115 W. Wolf River avenue, about 8:50 yesterday morning.

that many misunderstandings had been cleared of late and a future agreement appeared possible.

He denied that starvation wages were being paid by the company. He pointed out that practically all labor was of the unskilled classification and that wages in effect at the plant were nearly as good as those for skilled labor at other places in the Fox valley. He argued higher wages would boost the price of the canned sauerkraut too high to meet competition and that the plant would be unable to function under the load.

At the hearing it was brought out that nearly all employment at the plant was of a seasonal nature. Normally about eight men—six foremen and two firemen are comprised in the full time staff. About 230 persons were employed at the peak of operations the last summer, according to Mr. Hamilton, while 65 to 70 were employed when the strike was called Nov. 23.

Moral Standards of World Slipping, Rotary Club Told

New London—"Fixed Standards" was the topic of a brief talk, on present day morals by the Rev. Paul E. Herb as guest speaker before the New London Rotary club at the noon luncheon meeting at the Elwood hotel yesterday.

Pointing out that accepted units of weights, measures, time, and so forth, became fixed as standard in the course of civilization, the Rev. Herb declared the moral standards of the world are slipping backward. The fault is not entirely with the younger generation, he said, but is due in a great measure to the misguidance of the older people.

Today it appears people can't distinguish wrong from right, the pastor charged. "For true guidance we must turn to the laws presented to man on Mount Sinai," he said.

New London Cage Teams Defeated in Games at Oshkosh

Stacymen Bothered by Fox Valley Conference Rules

New London—New London High school cage teams returned from a non-conference game at Oshkosh last night at the short end of a 21 to 14 score. The game was in return for Oshkosh's trip here last year.

This week Coach D. N. Stacy will prime his boys for a Northeastern Wisconsin conference assignment Friday evening when Kaukauna will invade the New London floor. Kaukauna has lost its first two games, but after close fights with the loop's stronger teams, Shawano and Menasha.

The Stacymen trailed the entire game last night but were behind only 9 to 6 at the half. The boys missed on set ups and Douglas Hoier, lanky forward, didn't find the hoop until the second half when he potted three baskets to lead his team. Bernie Steen, forward, and Meinhardt, guard, left the game on fouls. Gordon Micklejohn, reserve guard, saw some of his first action in a varsity game and came away with a basket to his credit.

The score stood 7 to 2 at the end of the first quarter and 17 to 9 again after the third. With plenty of ice-cream material on hand the Oshkosh mentor replaced his senior team with the junior squad when the Indians earned a safe lead. New London missed 11 out of 15 free throws. Oshkosh 9 out of 14.

A ruling of the Fox Valley conference which bothered the Stacymen was the unfamiliar 10-second rule requiring the team scored upon to take the ball immediately and get into the opponent's half of the court within 10 seconds. The ruling also provided other restrictions.

The "B" squad took a 22 to 9 trimming at the hands of the Oshkosh reserves with about a dozen different boys seeing action on both sides.

ard." Nina was whispering. Her throat was clogged. She could scarcely force the words through. "I'm ready to face it now . . . at last."

"Nina . . ."

"Richard . . ."

He caught her so close that she gave a little cry.

He was a different man. When at last he let her go, his eyes were stormy.

"Nina, I love you," he said, "I can't live without you. We must find some way out of this . . . we must."

Nina was not yet able to think coherently—to talk.

She extended a hand, and took the cigarette Richard offered her. She bent her head to light it.

The smoke curled lazily, making a curtain between them.

Richard put his hands over his eyes, for a moment, as if making a tremendous effort.

When he took them down again, he looked calmer . . . more him self.

He took her arm and drew her over to a swinging couch, piled high with cushions.

He adjusted a cushion behind her back, and held an ash-tray for her cigarette.

Those little attentions . . . so like him.

"Richard," Nina managed finally, "what are we going to—do?"

He echoed: "Do?" as though it was the most absurd question in the world. He was smiling at her now.

"I mean—plans, darling," Nina blushed. "I mean arrangements. Honey . . . n' David . . . everything."

"But we done all we can about them, sweet. We tried, and failed. It's only you and I, now, Nina. You agreed."

She looked at her white hand, between his two brown ones. She thought—quite ridiculously—that it looked like a cream-cheese sandwich on brown bread . . .

"I meant . . . what shall we do about—telling them, Richard dear?"

"Telling . . . them?"

"Yes."

"Why, Nina . . ." he stopped short. Then: "Oh, I see."

HE SELLS 20 MILLION POUNDS OF TOBACCO A YEAR

Bob Cooper—tobacco auctioneer—tells why he, and other tobacco experts, prefer Luckies . . .

"I've been auctioneering for 20 years," says Mr. Cooper, "in Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee. . . and I've seen the tobacco Lucky Strike buys at auction after auction. It's the best in smoking quality,

"Luckies suit my throat, too, as well as my taste. Even after crying out bids 7 hours a day, Luckies never bother my throat in the least." (Reason: the exclusive "Toasting" process expels certain irritants found in all tobacco.)

"In every section of the Tobacco Belt where I auctioneer," Mr. Cooper adds, "I've noticed tobacco men smoking Luckies."

Are you benefiting by the experience of the tobacco experts? . . . Sworn records show that among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice, yes—twice, as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined.
